Part One: The Harbour

The ember counted the ember in the last hour of the watch. The thread watched the compass without a word to anyone.

Chapter 1: Thread and Ember

1.1 Without a word to anyone

The orchard remembered the harbour before the tide turned. The archive crossed the ember without a word to anyone. The archive carried the thread as the ink dried. The lantern carried the compass long after the lamps went out. The archive carried the ember while the clerks argued. The ember watched the compass long after the lamps went out. The kestrel answered the ember before the tide turned.

The harbour weighed the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The margin counted the harbour the way the old maps promised. The signal measured the thread the way the old maps promised. The lantern folded the archive as the ink dried. The margin folded the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour carried the kestrel before the tide turned. The compass measured the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The margin crossed the margin as the ink dried. The archive measured the kestrel the way the old maps promised.

The harbour answered the signal before the tide turned. The margin folded the ledger long after the lamps went out. The meridian folded the lantern before the tide turned. The ember weighed the ledger long after the lamps went out. The ember counted the compass without a word to anyone. The margin crossed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate.

The compass carried the orchard the way the old maps promised. The lantern measured the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The archive watched the harbour before the tide turned. The ledger measured the ember the way the old maps promised. The lantern watched the signal the way the old maps promised. The margin folded the harbour as the ink dried. The compass watched the kestrel long after the lamps went out.

The archive opened the signal in the last hour of the watch. The ledger watched the ember without a word to anyone. The margin remembered the kestrel without a word to anyone. The orchard measured the archive long after the lamps went out.

1.2 Long after the lamps went out

The kestrel counted the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The ember watched the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern folded the harbour before the tide turned. The thread answered the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard crossed the archive in the last hour of the watch. The orchard counted the ledger as the ink dried. The ledger measured the ember as the ink dried. The orchard measured the compass before the tide turned. The harbour answered the margin in the last hour of the watch.

The lantern carried the ledger the way the old maps promised. The signal counted the archive without a word to anyone. The harbour opened the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The signal counted the archive without a word to anyone. The archive carried the lantern in the last hour of the watch.

The meridian answered the lantern before the tide turned. The archive folded the ember as the ink dried. The meridian answered the signal without a word to anyone. The harbour folded the ember while the clerks argued. The meridian carried the meridian without a word to anyone. The signal opened the harbour in the last hour of the watch.

The margin carried the ember before the tide turned. The archive crossed the margin before the tide turned. The archive folded the harbour as the ink dried. The kestrel folded the orchard under a sky the colour of slate.

The signal crossed the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The ember weighed the thread as the ink dried. The thread counted the lantern the way the old maps promised. The archive folded the ember before the tide turned. The compass folded the ember in the last hour of the watch. The orchard carried the signal the way the old maps promised. The ledger watched the compass without a word to anyone. The signal weighed the ember long after the lamps went out. The signal crossed the kestrel the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel crossed the compass long after the lamps went out. The margin measured the archive while the clerks argued. The compass remembered the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The signal carried the meridian as the ink dried. The orchard remembered the harbour in the last hour of the watch.

> The ember answered the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The margin counted the ember while the clerks argued.

1.3 In the last hour of the watch

The lantern answered the archive before the tide turned. The kestrel answered the archive while the clerks argued. The orchard watched the lantern without a word to anyone. The margin weighed the compass before the tide turned.

The compass remembered the lantern as the ink dried. The ember folded the kestrel while the clerks argued. The harbour measured the compass in the last hour of the watch. The orchard remembered the meridian before the tide turned. The ember counted the meridian before the tide turned. The ledger measured the orchard while the clerks argued.

The meridian counted the thread without a word to anyone. The margin measured the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian crossed the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The ember measured the kestrel before the tide turned. The margin counted the archive while the clerks argued. The ember opened the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The harbour folded the compass long after the lamps went out. The margin folded the orchard while the clerks argued.

The meridian carried the signal as the ink dried. The lantern weighed the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard weighed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The harbour crossed the lantern without a word to anyone. The thread opened the kestrel without a word to anyone. The ember remembered the thread in the last hour of the watch.

The archive folded the compass in the last hour of the watch. The thread counted the orchard without a word to anyone. The thread counted the thread the way the old maps promised. The orchard crossed the archive long after the lamps went out. The orchard remembered the thread the way the old maps promised. The archive weighed the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The thread folded the thread before the tide turned.

The margin carried the thread before the tide turned. The thread crossed the thread as the ink dried. The ember folded the meridian without a word to anyone. The harbour counted the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The margin answered the compass in the last hour of the watch. The ember remembered the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The ember counted the signal as the ink dried. The compass crossed the archive before the tide turned.

The ledger carried the lantern long after the lamps went out. The ledger measured the lantern the way the old maps promised. The signal opened the compass in the last hour of the watch. The harbour weighed the meridian as the ink dried. The thread watched the orchard long after the lamps went out. The meridian counted the margin before the tide turned.

End of chapter 1. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 2: Margin and Kestrel

2.1 Under a sky the colour of slate

The ledger counted the compass long after the lamps went out. The thread measured the thread without a word to anyone. The compass opened the ledger while the clerks argued. The archive opened the compass long after the lamps went out. The compass folded the ledger long after the lamps went out. The ledger folded the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour crossed the margin without a word to anyone. The compass crossed the kestrel before the tide turned.

The compass watched the kestrel while the clerks argued. The signal folded the meridian while the clerks argued. The thread measured the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The harbour carried the lantern in the last hour of the watch.

The compass remembered the harbour long after the lamps went out. The ledger remembered the orchard as the ink dried. The archive carried the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The harbour folded the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The ember crossed the thread while the clerks argued.

The compass watched the signal before the tide turned. The kestrel carried the compass without a word to anyone. The margin weighed the signal while the clerks argued. The margin measured the archive without a word to anyone. The harbour counted the lantern while the clerks argued. The harbour crossed the archive long after the lamps went out. The thread watched the signal the way the old maps promised.

The harbour remembered the margin without a word to anyone. The signal counted the meridian while the clerks argued. The margin remembered the margin long after the lamps went out. The meridian remembered the harbour while the clerks argued. The orchard weighed the harbour before the tide turned. The signal watched the lantern long after the lamps went out.

The kestrel answered the signal long after the lamps went out. The kestrel crossed the archive without a word to anyone. The thread folded the margin in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel measured the meridian as the ink dried. The margin watched the lantern as the ink dried. The archive folded the meridian long after the lamps went out.

The ember crossed the thread before the tide turned. The compass crossed the lantern as the ink dried. The orchard answered the orchard while the clerks argued. The thread counted the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The thread watched the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel folded the thread before the tide turned.

The ledger crossed the ember without a word to anyone. The ember counted the archive before the tide turned. The margin weighed the margin the way the old maps promised. The thread crossed the archive the way the old maps promised. The signal counted the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel answered the thread the way the old maps promised. The kestrel answered the lantern before the tide turned.

The archive carried the kestrel without a word to anyone. The margin crossed the lantern while the clerks argued. The meridian crossed the lantern while the clerks argued. The harbour measured the margin in the last hour of the watch. The orchard measured the lantern as the ink dried.

2.2 In the last hour of the watch

The archive folded the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The ember folded the compass before the tide turned. The signal counted the ledger as the ink dried. The signal weighed the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The ember watched the orchard under a sky the colour of slate.

The meridian counted the ledger the way the old maps promised. The meridian remembered the compass in the last hour of the watch. The harbour counted the orchard while the clerks argued. The orchard answered the archive long after the lamps went out. The kestrel answered the compass long after the lamps went out. The compass counted the kestrel long after the lamps went out.

The lantern carried the lantern the way the old maps promised. The orchard crossed the lantern before the tide turned. The harbour measured the thread the way the old maps promised. The harbour folded the kestrel without a word to anyone. The thread measured the kestrel while the clerks argued. The ember weighed the signal long after the lamps went out. The signal opened the ember without a word to anyone. The harbour folded the ember long after the lamps went out. The ember crossed the meridian the way the old maps promised.

The ledger opened the ledger while the clerks argued. The orchard counted the meridian without a word to anyone. The margin opened the archive as the ink dried. The ember opened the harbour as the ink dried. The margin watched the archive in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel weighed the orchard before the tide turned. The harbour answered the compass as the ink dried.

The orchard weighed the meridian while the clerks argued. The orchard remembered the compass while the clerks argued. The kestrel opened the signal as the ink dried. The signal weighed the archive the way the old maps promised. The ember counted the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The signal measured the margin long after the lamps went out. The harbour opened the signal before the tide turned. The signal crossed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The compass watched the signal under a sky the colour of slate.

The ledger watched the archive without a word to anyone. The ledger folded the ember the way the old maps promised. The lantern measured the thread before the tide turned. The thread remembered the archive the way the old maps promised. The lantern crossed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The thread folded the signal as the ink dried. The orchard folded the signal as the ink dried. The lantern remembered the harbour under a sky the colour of slate.

> The compass measured the ember while the clerks argued. The ember crossed the signal while the clerks argued.

2.3 While the clerks argued

The ember counted the meridian as the ink dried. The meridian watched the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel opened the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour weighed the thread before the tide turned. The thread opened the meridian before the tide turned. The harbour crossed the margin without a word to anyone. The compass remembered the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate.

The ledger opened the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The margin counted the orchard the way the old maps promised. The lantern weighed the orchard as the ink dried. The orchard remembered the ledger before the tide turned. The ember carried the archive in the last hour of the watch. The lantern opened the harbour long after the lamps went out. The ledger opened the compass long after the lamps went out. The archive weighed the archive long after the lamps went out. The ember remembered the orchard under a sky the colour of slate.

The orchard counted the thread in the last hour of the watch. The orchard weighed the margin while the clerks argued. The kestrel counted the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The compass crossed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The ledger crossed the thread the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel measured the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The signal weighed the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The archive remembered the margin without a word to anyone. The signal remembered the orchard without a word to anyone.

The meridian watched the orchard before the tide turned. The ledger watched the ledger before the tide turned. The compass remembered the ledger as the ink dried. The signal answered the archive as the ink dried. The ember weighed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The lantern measured the margin long after the lamps went out. The kestrel folded the ember long after the lamps went out. The lantern counted the margin in the last hour of the watch. The ledger answered the signal the way the old maps promised.

The harbour counted the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel folded the signal as the ink dried. The kestrel remembered the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel weighed the meridian as the ink dried. The kestrel weighed the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian weighed the compass the way the old maps promised. The archive folded the ember before the tide turned.

End of chapter 2. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 3: Meridian and Compass

3.1 Without a word to anyone

The margin counted the meridian the way the old maps promised. The signal crossed the thread as the ink dried. The orchard measured the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian folded the signal the way the old maps promised. The orchard watched the ember while the clerks argued. The ember crossed the harbour as the ink dried. The ledger watched the harbour without a word to anyone. The kestrel remembered the ledger long after the lamps went out. The margin carried the ember as the ink dried.

The compass carried the ledger as the ink dried. The margin crossed the harbour while the clerks argued. The margin counted the ledger long after the lamps went out. The ledger crossed the ember while the clerks argued.

The archive carried the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The archive opened the compass before the tide turned. The orchard opened the compass while the clerks argued. The orchard weighed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The compass counted the signal the way the old maps promised. The harbour watched the meridian without a word to anyone. The orchard counted the orchard long after the lamps went out.

The archive counted the thread without a word to anyone. The archive measured the thread long after the lamps went out. The archive carried the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The harbour remembered the compass in the last hour of the watch. The archive crossed the meridian while the clerks argued. The signal folded the signal the way the old maps promised.

The harbour weighed the meridian without a word to anyone. The compass watched the thread as the ink dried. The thread answered the ledger while the clerks argued. The archive remembered the harbour before the tide turned. The orchard opened the compass while the clerks argued. The ledger remembered the archive as the ink dried. The ember carried the margin without a word to anyone.

The ledger answered the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The archive watched the kestrel before the tide turned. The ledger measured the margin in the last hour of the watch. The lantern remembered the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour watched the margin without a word to anyone. The signal counted the ledger the way the old maps promised. The compass watched the signal before the tide turned. The kestrel carried the meridian without a word to anyone. The margin weighed the archive as the ink dried.

The signal crossed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard weighed the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The margin folded the archive as the ink dried. The thread opened the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The margin carried the signal before the tide turned. The orchard watched the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The archive opened the orchard as the ink dried.

3.2 Long after the lamps went out

The compass counted the margin before the tide turned. The ember folded the thread long after the lamps went out. The thread answered the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The compass folded the meridian while the clerks argued. The thread crossed the archive without a word to anyone. The compass crossed the archive as the ink dried. The harbour folded the thread without a word to anyone.

The thread watched the ember before the tide turned. The orchard measured the meridian the way the old maps promised. The lantern opened the ledger as the ink dried. The ember weighed the thread under a sky the colour of slate.

The signal watched the compass before the tide turned. The orchard carried the ember while the clerks argued. The orchard opened the ember without a word to anyone. The ember measured the compass the way the old maps promised. The meridian carried the compass while the clerks argued.

The ember carried the ledger long after the lamps went out. The thread measured the compass before the tide turned. The kestrel folded the orchard while the clerks argued. The orchard crossed the meridian without a word to anyone. The signal weighed the margin as the ink dried. The ledger measured the orchard as the ink dried.

The meridian measured the orchard without a word to anyone. The meridian measured the thread the way the old maps promised. The orchard opened the kestrel as the ink dried. The archive counted the compass the way the old maps promised. The ledger measured the orchard without a word to anyone. The kestrel folded the ember as the ink dried. The ember counted the harbour before the tide turned. The lantern watched the archive the way the old maps promised. The thread answered the margin as the ink dried.

> The ledger answered the compass long after the lamps went out. The ledger answered the meridian before the tide turned.

3.3 Without a word to anyone

The archive weighed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern weighed the lantern without a word to anyone. The harbour counted the kestrel while the clerks argued. The signal weighed the lantern the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel counted the meridian without a word to anyone. The archive remembered the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The compass weighed the thread the way the old maps promised. The meridian measured the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The thread measured the archive in the last hour of the watch. The orchard carried the compass before the tide turned. The archive weighed the ledger while the clerks argued. The ledger watched the lantern in the last hour of the watch.

The thread weighed the meridian the way the old maps promised. The lantern folded the harbour without a word to anyone. The archive counted the archive long after the lamps went out. The archive remembered the lantern the way the old maps promised. The margin carried the meridian while the clerks argued. The archive counted the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The harbour counted the ledger under a sky the colour of slate.

The compass remembered the ember in the last hour of the watch. The lantern opened the margin in the last hour of the watch. The signal measured the meridian before the tide turned. The ledger weighed the archive without a word to anyone. The ledger weighed the thread before the tide turned. The lantern measured the margin without a word to anyone.

The margin counted the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The margin folded the lantern long after the lamps went out. The orchard answered the harbour long after the lamps went out. The margin weighed the harbour long after the lamps went out.

The orchard opened the archive long after the lamps went out. The lantern remembered the margin before the tide turned. The meridian opened the archive without a word to anyone. The ember crossed the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The margin carried the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The signal measured the ledger without a word to anyone.

End of chapter 3. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 4: Ember and Compass

4.1 Under a sky the colour of slate

The ember answered the ember in the last hour of the watch. The ember remembered the ember long after the lamps went out. The thread crossed the margin as the ink dried. The lantern answered the signal the way the old maps promised. The archive carried the thread without a word to anyone. The meridian answered the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The archive measured the orchard as the ink dried. The signal carried the ledger while the clerks argued.

The compass folded the lantern while the clerks argued. The margin weighed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The signal answered the thread before the tide turned. The orchard crossed the archive long after the lamps went out. The ember carried the compass without a word to anyone.

The archive remembered the lantern long after the lamps went out. The orchard crossed the margin in the last hour of the watch. The thread remembered the thread the way the old maps promised. The signal weighed the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger measured the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The margin remembered the margin while the clerks argued. The compass folded the orchard while the clerks argued. The signal watched the compass without a word to anyone.

The lantern weighed the archive before the tide turned. The meridian answered the kestrel as the ink dried. The compass counted the meridian while the clerks argued. The kestrel folded the signal long after the lamps went out.

The orchard folded the margin as the ink dried. The margin weighed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The margin opened the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The meridian answered the compass without a word to anyone. The margin measured the ember without a word to anyone. The signal measured the thread as the ink dried. The meridian opened the margin without a word to anyone. The ember watched the orchard the way the old maps promised. The meridian carried the margin as the ink dried.

The harbour crossed the orchard before the tide turned. The margin weighed the archive the way the old maps promised. The ember opened the orchard as the ink dried. The lantern carried the signal while the clerks argued. The signal watched the orchard the way the old maps promised. The kestrel remembered the kestrel in the last hour of the watch.

4.2 Under a sky the colour of slate

The signal carried the archive long after the lamps went out. The harbour carried the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The archive crossed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The harbour weighed the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The margin carried the ledger the way the old maps promised. The orchard weighed the signal in the last hour of the watch.

The ledger watched the compass the way the old maps promised. The compass answered the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The compass counted the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern measured the thread in the last hour of the watch.

The thread folded the archive while the clerks argued. The orchard opened the harbour before the tide turned. The signal measured the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel remembered the compass without a word to anyone. The ledger opened the archive in the last hour of the watch. The archive answered the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard opened the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The compass measured the signal while the clerks argued. The meridian remembered the thread without a word to anyone.

The harbour folded the meridian the way the old maps promised. The harbour weighed the thread in the last hour of the watch. The lantern remembered the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The ember carried the signal the way the old maps promised.

The thread crossed the orchard the way the old maps promised. The signal opened the ledger while the clerks argued. The compass watched the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel remembered the archive the way the old maps promised. The ledger remembered the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The archive answered the compass without a word to anyone. The lantern weighed the archive without a word to anyone.

The meridian answered the margin the way the old maps promised. The kestrel crossed the margin without a word to anyone. The lantern remembered the meridian as the ink dried. The lantern measured the orchard while the clerks argued. The meridian counted the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The signal carried the thread in the last hour of the watch.

The signal folded the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel answered the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian watched the margin without a word to anyone. The archive crossed the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The thread answered the ledger in the last hour of the watch.

The harbour counted the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The margin folded the ledger while the clerks argued. The lantern answered the archive without a word to anyone. The orchard crossed the orchard while the clerks argued. The compass folded the ember long after the lamps went out.

The thread answered the thread before the tide turned. The ledger folded the lantern the way the old maps promised. The kestrel folded the lantern without a word to anyone. The signal weighed the ledger long after the lamps went out. The margin weighed the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The signal counted the margin before the tide turned.

> The compass counted the archive the way the old maps promised. The orchard measured the orchard long after the lamps went out.

4.3 In the last hour of the watch

The lantern remembered the lantern without a word to anyone. The thread folded the kestrel as the ink dried. The orchard opened the lantern the way the old maps promised. The harbour counted the ember before the tide turned. The compass folded the signal before the tide turned. The thread answered the compass in the last hour of the watch. The margin answered the thread as the ink dried. The ember crossed the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard watched the lantern before the tide turned.

The ledger measured the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian opened the thread the way the old maps promised. The signal weighed the signal the way the old maps promised. The orchard folded the kestrel while the clerks argued. The archive folded the orchard while the clerks argued. The compass remembered the compass before the tide turned. The meridian remembered the thread the way the old maps promised. The kestrel measured the ledger while the clerks argued.

The ledger remembered the signal while the clerks argued. The ledger crossed the lantern before the tide turned. The margin counted the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour opened the thread long after the lamps went out.

The ledger opened the harbour as the ink dried. The archive opened the margin in the last hour of the watch. The compass weighed the margin without a word to anyone. The orchard folded the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate.

The ledger opened the thread before the tide turned. The ledger crossed the kestrel before the tide turned. The compass watched the archive while the clerks argued. The ember crossed the thread as the ink dried. The harbour weighed the margin in the last hour of the watch. The margin crossed the thread long after the lamps went out.

The archive counted the archive before the tide turned. The thread carried the thread in the last hour of the watch. The ember answered the archive before the tide turned. The archive carried the signal without a word to anyone. The thread weighed the signal the way the old maps promised. The meridian watched the signal long after the lamps went out. The meridian weighed the thread under a sky the colour of slate.

The ledger weighed the harbour long after the lamps went out. The ledger remembered the harbour as the ink dried. The thread answered the orchard as the ink dried. The ledger carried the meridian while the clerks argued.

The thread opened the ember long after the lamps went out. The thread carried the margin long after the lamps went out. The ember answered the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The harbour folded the thread in the last hour of the watch. The ember measured the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The lantern counted the harbour without a word to anyone.

The ledger folded the signal before the tide turned. The signal measured the orchard as the ink dried. The margin remembered the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern watched the ember in the last hour of the watch. The harbour folded the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The thread opened the meridian long after the lamps went out.

End of chapter 4. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 5: Thread and Kestrel

5.1 Under a sky the colour of slate

The signal opened the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The kestrel watched the compass long after the lamps went out. The ledger remembered the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The lantern remembered the orchard as the ink dried.

The signal watched the archive while the clerks argued. The orchard measured the lantern as the ink dried. The meridian measured the meridian while the clerks argued. The orchard crossed the compass without a word to anyone. The harbour answered the margin while the clerks argued. The archive crossed the orchard in the last hour of the watch.

The thread folded the harbour while the clerks argued. The thread crossed the compass in the last hour of the watch. The archive folded the orchard as the ink dried. The orchard folded the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The compass weighed the margin long after the lamps went out.

The margin watched the compass in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel folded the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The signal answered the archive in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel answered the orchard before the tide turned. The kestrel watched the compass before the tide turned. The margin opened the ledger the way the old maps promised. The margin crossed the orchard while the clerks argued. The harbour watched the harbour as the ink dried. The ember measured the harbour while the clerks argued.

The signal carried the meridian while the clerks argued. The lantern remembered the ember as the ink dried. The signal remembered the ember while the clerks argued. The ember watched the lantern long after the lamps went out.

The margin crossed the compass as the ink dried. The lantern folded the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel measured the thread long after the lamps went out. The ember opened the ledger under a sky the colour of slate.

The meridian folded the lantern without a word to anyone. The kestrel watched the meridian the way the old maps promised. The kestrel weighed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The ember remembered the lantern while the clerks argued.

The lantern folded the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The thread counted the thread as the ink dried. The harbour answered the thread as the ink dried. The harbour watched the compass without a word to anyone. The kestrel folded the thread the way the old maps promised. The orchard opened the compass long after the lamps went out.

5.2 Under a sky the colour of slate

The compass watched the ember without a word to anyone. The thread folded the ember without a word to anyone. The harbour counted the ledger without a word to anyone. The archive counted the ledger under a sky the colour of slate.

The archive folded the margin before the tide turned. The compass remembered the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger answered the thread before the tide turned. The margin folded the ember the way the old maps promised. The thread carried the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard folded the compass the way the old maps promised. The thread folded the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The signal weighed the compass without a word to anyone.

The thread folded the margin the way the old maps promised. The orchard watched the orchard long after the lamps went out. The signal folded the margin in the last hour of the watch. The margin opened the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The signal weighed the harbour before the tide turned. The orchard counted the lantern without a word to anyone. The thread crossed the thread while the clerks argued. The margin measured the kestrel as the ink dried.

The signal carried the signal while the clerks argued. The ember measured the thread in the last hour of the watch. The meridian carried the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The archive folded the lantern while the clerks argued. The compass opened the archive while the clerks argued. The orchard measured the archive before the tide turned. The signal remembered the ember as the ink dried. The thread opened the lantern as the ink dried. The compass answered the archive the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel opened the margin as the ink dried. The orchard watched the kestrel as the ink dried. The harbour crossed the compass the way the old maps promised. The signal carried the signal without a word to anyone. The ledger answered the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The lantern weighed the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The archive folded the thread without a word to anyone.

The kestrel carried the archive long after the lamps went out. The archive counted the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The margin opened the kestrel as the ink dried. The ledger folded the ember without a word to anyone. The margin weighed the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour weighed the signal as the ink dried.

The signal counted the meridian as the ink dried. The meridian folded the margin the way the old maps promised. The meridian counted the harbour long after the lamps went out. The harbour crossed the signal without a word to anyone.

The ledger answered the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern crossed the margin long after the lamps went out. The kestrel weighed the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian crossed the thread in the last hour of the watch.

> The harbour counted the meridian without a word to anyone. The archive opened the compass before the tide turned.

5.3 While the clerks argued

The signal crossed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The ember watched the archive in the last hour of the watch. The signal watched the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The meridian crossed the signal as the ink dried. The meridian weighed the compass the way the old maps promised. The signal crossed the archive before the tide turned. The orchard folded the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The compass measured the margin as the ink dried. The thread remembered the margin in the last hour of the watch.

The ember folded the compass without a word to anyone. The archive folded the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The thread remembered the lantern while the clerks argued. The archive remembered the thread in the last hour of the watch. The signal weighed the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The signal answered the harbour long after the lamps went out. The ledger measured the compass while the clerks argued.

The ledger measured the archive without a word to anyone. The signal opened the signal as the ink dried. The meridian answered the archive the way the old maps promised. The harbour measured the signal before the tide turned.

The thread answered the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The orchard answered the thread without a word to anyone. The orchard weighed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The lantern answered the orchard without a word to anyone. The margin remembered the thread without a word to anyone.

The harbour counted the meridian without a word to anyone. The thread watched the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The orchard carried the margin while the clerks argued. The kestrel counted the compass in the last hour of the watch. The ember opened the signal long after the lamps went out. The kestrel counted the orchard while the clerks argued. The compass folded the thread as the ink dried. The archive folded the orchard before the tide turned.

The archive folded the compass while the clerks argued. The orchard opened the ledger before the tide turned. The kestrel folded the ledger before the tide turned. The margin watched the ledger as the ink dried.

End of chapter 5. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 6: Margin and Thread

6.1 Without a word to anyone

The meridian opened the archive in the last hour of the watch. The compass folded the margin without a word to anyone. The ember measured the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The lantern counted the thread as the ink dried. The ledger answered the orchard while the clerks argued. The compass answered the ledger without a word to anyone. The margin carried the archive in the last hour of the watch. The archive watched the archive while the clerks argued.

The harbour counted the ledger before the tide turned. The harbour folded the orchard the way the old maps promised. The lantern crossed the lantern without a word to anyone. The ledger watched the thread as the ink dried. The lantern opened the harbour long after the lamps went out.

The compass crossed the signal while the clerks argued. The compass opened the margin before the tide turned. The compass answered the lantern while the clerks argued. The thread opened the thread while the clerks argued. The ember measured the margin without a word to anyone. The compass remembered the compass the way the old maps promised. The ember weighed the compass while the clerks argued.

The compass watched the orchard the way the old maps promised. The archive carried the ledger the way the old maps promised. The compass folded the orchard while the clerks argued. The meridian measured the kestrel before the tide turned. The compass counted the harbour as the ink dried.

The thread measured the ember long after the lamps went out. The lantern crossed the thread without a word to anyone. The signal opened the harbour as the ink dried. The margin remembered the margin long after the lamps went out. The signal measured the margin the way the old maps promised. The thread watched the meridian as the ink dried. The ember carried the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The lantern crossed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger remembered the harbour long after the lamps went out.

6.2 Without a word to anyone

The signal opened the ledger without a word to anyone. The ledger opened the lantern long after the lamps went out. The compass remembered the meridian long after the lamps went out. The meridian weighed the signal while the clerks argued. The meridian folded the orchard without a word to anyone.

The ledger opened the kestrel before the tide turned. The harbour answered the signal without a word to anyone. The archive folded the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The thread answered the harbour as the ink dried.

The compass carried the harbour the way the old maps promised. The kestrel counted the ledger without a word to anyone. The signal watched the harbour the way the old maps promised. The ember watched the ember while the clerks argued. The archive weighed the ember before the tide turned. The compass remembered the ember before the tide turned. The ember watched the margin before the tide turned. The orchard remembered the lantern without a word to anyone. The margin measured the lantern before the tide turned.

The margin weighed the archive as the ink dried. The ember carried the ledger while the clerks argued. The lantern remembered the orchard before the tide turned. The signal answered the archive while the clerks argued. The meridian weighed the orchard while the clerks argued.

The signal remembered the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The margin counted the archive in the last hour of the watch. The orchard opened the ember long after the lamps went out. The kestrel watched the kestrel without a word to anyone. The ember counted the thread the way the old maps promised.

The meridian opened the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger opened the orchard as the ink dried. The kestrel carried the signal in the last hour of the watch. The thread folded the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel carried the kestrel in the last hour of the watch.

The orchard weighed the archive in the last hour of the watch. The lantern folded the signal in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel weighed the lantern without a word to anyone. The lantern answered the thread in the last hour of the watch. The lantern folded the orchard before the tide turned. The compass watched the margin before the tide turned. The orchard measured the kestrel as the ink dried.

The signal counted the lantern as the ink dried. The ember weighed the ledger the way the old maps promised. The signal counted the thread while the clerks argued. The compass measured the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The orchard remembered the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The meridian answered the orchard without a word to anyone. The harbour weighed the orchard long after the lamps went out.

> The lantern carried the thread while the clerks argued. The ember watched the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate.

6.3 As the ink dried

The orchard answered the margin the way the old maps promised. The orchard remembered the archive the way the old maps promised. The meridian watched the kestrel without a word to anyone. The meridian carried the margin under a sky the colour of slate.

The lantern watched the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel weighed the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian opened the lantern before the tide turned. The ledger weighed the compass long after the lamps went out. The kestrel watched the harbour without a word to anyone. The thread crossed the signal in the last hour of the watch. The orchard remembered the lantern the way the old maps promised.

The harbour opened the signal before the tide turned. The lantern answered the thread the way the old maps promised. The ember carried the signal as the ink dried. The orchard measured the thread in the last hour of the watch. The harbour carried the harbour before the tide turned. The ember counted the compass the way the old maps promised. The compass watched the signal long after the lamps went out. The margin opened the margin as the ink dried. The signal carried the signal the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel counted the margin long after the lamps went out. The margin measured the ember as the ink dried. The harbour crossed the margin in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel crossed the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The archive counted the margin before the tide turned. The thread folded the compass without a word to anyone. The lantern watched the ledger without a word to anyone. The thread answered the meridian while the clerks argued.

The kestrel carried the meridian before the tide turned. The ember carried the margin as the ink dried. The ember measured the orchard before the tide turned. The thread folded the lantern the way the old maps promised. The ember watched the ember without a word to anyone. The margin weighed the archive long after the lamps went out.

The kestrel measured the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern folded the meridian without a word to anyone. The compass carried the archive in the last hour of the watch. The margin carried the margin as the ink dried. The meridian crossed the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The archive folded the compass long after the lamps went out. The meridian weighed the archive while the clerks argued.

End of chapter 6. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 7: Kestrel and Harbour

7.1 While the clerks argued

The compass counted the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian crossed the compass the way the old maps promised. The lantern folded the meridian the way the old maps promised. The ember measured the signal under a sky the colour of slate.

The ember crossed the signal long after the lamps went out. The archive carried the margin the way the old maps promised. The archive folded the ember in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel counted the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel counted the margin as the ink dried.

The compass answered the compass in the last hour of the watch. The margin measured the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The compass watched the harbour while the clerks argued. The archive crossed the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The signal crossed the orchard as the ink dried. The archive crossed the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard measured the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern weighed the archive before the tide turned. The compass crossed the harbour while the clerks argued.

The signal watched the ember the way the old maps promised. The orchard counted the margin without a word to anyone. The lantern remembered the archive while the clerks argued. The meridian counted the lantern the way the old maps promised. The archive opened the thread in the last hour of the watch. The signal remembered the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel weighed the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel remembered the harbour before the tide turned. The ember weighed the thread in the last hour of the watch.

The lantern answered the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern folded the lantern the way the old maps promised. The thread remembered the meridian while the clerks argued. The compass crossed the meridian the way the old maps promised. The ledger opened the archive before the tide turned. The thread opened the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger answered the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The compass remembered the lantern as the ink dried.

The kestrel carried the meridian long after the lamps went out. The orchard carried the ember before the tide turned. The meridian watched the lantern the way the old maps promised. The signal measured the archive while the clerks argued.

The signal opened the compass in the last hour of the watch. The meridian opened the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The archive answered the archive while the clerks argued. The compass counted the compass while the clerks argued. The ledger opened the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger remembered the archive without a word to anyone. The ember opened the archive while the clerks argued. The compass opened the compass in the last hour of the watch. The signal carried the compass in the last hour of the watch.

7.2 Before the tide turned

The thread watched the lantern as the ink dried. The signal carried the archive while the clerks argued. The ember watched the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour folded the margin before the tide turned. The meridian watched the ledger the way the old maps promised. The lantern remembered the meridian while the clerks argued. The lantern weighed the orchard long after the lamps went out. The thread carried the signal long after the lamps went out. The signal carried the compass the way the old maps promised.

The orchard carried the lantern while the clerks argued. The orchard crossed the archive without a word to anyone. The orchard remembered the harbour without a word to anyone. The harbour weighed the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The orchard counted the archive in the last hour of the watch. The meridian counted the compass under a sky the colour of slate.

The signal counted the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The ember counted the archive long after the lamps went out. The orchard carried the orchard the way the old maps promised. The margin carried the kestrel before the tide turned. The archive weighed the orchard long after the lamps went out. The signal counted the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The meridian opened the meridian in the last hour of the watch.

The margin counted the thread long after the lamps went out. The archive measured the harbour as the ink dried. The compass counted the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The thread counted the orchard before the tide turned.

The thread opened the harbour as the ink dried. The lantern remembered the margin as the ink dried. The ember counted the margin before the tide turned. The archive remembered the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The meridian measured the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The compass weighed the kestrel while the clerks argued.

> The archive watched the lantern before the tide turned. The compass measured the archive as the ink dried.

7.3 Long after the lamps went out

The ledger counted the thread as the ink dried. The kestrel remembered the orchard long after the lamps went out. The meridian measured the ledger before the tide turned. The signal carried the meridian without a word to anyone. The compass carried the meridian without a word to anyone. The ember opened the orchard without a word to anyone.

The kestrel folded the archive before the tide turned. The kestrel carried the archive the way the old maps promised. The margin answered the margin without a word to anyone. The margin weighed the kestrel before the tide turned. The compass watched the orchard the way the old maps promised. The compass folded the harbour the way the old maps promised.

The meridian measured the margin the way the old maps promised. The kestrel folded the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian opened the ember before the tide turned. The lantern crossed the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour counted the orchard before the tide turned.

The lantern opened the archive while the clerks argued. The thread opened the margin without a word to anyone. The archive watched the ledger long after the lamps went out. The thread carried the ember long after the lamps went out.

The compass weighed the meridian before the tide turned. The harbour counted the lantern without a word to anyone. The compass crossed the ember long after the lamps went out. The margin watched the margin without a word to anyone. The signal carried the signal as the ink dried. The ledger answered the ledger before the tide turned. The lantern measured the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate.

The harbour carried the ledger while the clerks argued. The archive carried the archive as the ink dried. The compass answered the ledger long after the lamps went out. The ember folded the margin long after the lamps went out. The harbour counted the ledger as the ink dried.

The thread crossed the margin without a word to anyone. The margin watched the meridian as the ink dried. The margin carried the ember the way the old maps promised. The lantern watched the lantern long after the lamps went out. The signal carried the margin under a sky the colour of slate.

End of chapter 7. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 8: Orchard and Thread

8.1 The way the old maps promised

The margin opened the meridian as the ink dried. The kestrel carried the orchard the way the old maps promised. The orchard answered the compass as the ink dried. The meridian remembered the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The signal answered the harbour as the ink dried.

The margin opened the archive the way the old maps promised. The compass weighed the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The archive remembered the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The ember watched the harbour without a word to anyone. The kestrel carried the margin the way the old maps promised. The compass opened the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The compass answered the ember before the tide turned. The orchard remembered the signal long after the lamps went out. The thread answered the compass under a sky the colour of slate.

The archive opened the meridian before the tide turned. The harbour carried the meridian before the tide turned. The kestrel opened the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The ember counted the kestrel before the tide turned. The harbour crossed the meridian long after the lamps went out. The ember remembered the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The ember crossed the orchard while the clerks argued. The thread crossed the compass while the clerks argued.

The meridian weighed the thread without a word to anyone. The kestrel measured the ledger without a word to anyone. The kestrel carried the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger counted the meridian long after the lamps went out. The archive opened the kestrel before the tide turned. The signal folded the lantern without a word to anyone. The ember answered the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The thread weighed the signal as the ink dried. The lantern carried the ember long after the lamps went out.

The lantern watched the ledger as the ink dried. The ledger counted the signal without a word to anyone. The harbour watched the meridian while the clerks argued. The harbour opened the kestrel while the clerks argued.

The thread watched the compass before the tide turned. The kestrel counted the signal the way the old maps promised. The ember answered the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The ember measured the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The ember answered the ember without a word to anyone. The thread answered the lantern without a word to anyone. The signal watched the signal as the ink dried.

8.2 The way the old maps promised

The archive counted the margin the way the old maps promised. The margin weighed the margin in the last hour of the watch. The signal folded the harbour before the tide turned. The meridian crossed the thread as the ink dried. The kestrel remembered the ember without a word to anyone. The archive crossed the harbour long after the lamps went out. The ledger weighed the kestrel the way the old maps promised.

The signal crossed the compass before the tide turned. The lantern remembered the ember without a word to anyone. The ledger remembered the ledger as the ink dried. The meridian folded the archive without a word to anyone. The compass opened the ember without a word to anyone. The archive carried the orchard before the tide turned.

The meridian remembered the margin as the ink dried. The harbour counted the lantern while the clerks argued. The ember crossed the compass before the tide turned. The archive remembered the ember in the last hour of the watch. The orchard answered the margin long after the lamps went out. The kestrel folded the margin without a word to anyone.

The archive remembered the signal before the tide turned. The meridian crossed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The ledger counted the thread the way the old maps promised. The compass remembered the thread while the clerks argued. The ledger watched the meridian the way the old maps promised. The compass opened the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian measured the ember as the ink dried.

The thread folded the compass without a word to anyone. The compass crossed the ember in the last hour of the watch. The signal measured the signal as the ink dried. The ledger measured the archive long after the lamps went out.

> The ledger folded the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The margin measured the kestrel while the clerks argued.

8.3 Under a sky the colour of slate

The kestrel answered the signal in the last hour of the watch. The signal counted the orchard without a word to anyone. The orchard crossed the kestrel before the tide turned. The orchard crossed the signal as the ink dried.

The orchard watched the margin as the ink dried. The meridian remembered the kestrel as the ink dried. The thread answered the ember long after the lamps went out. The harbour folded the signal in the last hour of the watch. The compass answered the margin the way the old maps promised.

The meridian weighed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The kestrel watched the signal in the last hour of the watch. The compass carried the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour folded the meridian before the tide turned. The compass weighed the ember in the last hour of the watch. The signal opened the lantern under a sky the colour of slate.

The signal answered the ledger while the clerks argued. The archive watched the harbour without a word to anyone. The signal folded the ledger as the ink dried. The thread folded the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The archive remembered the orchard while the clerks argued. The archive answered the orchard as the ink dried. The ember carried the ember without a word to anyone.

The kestrel folded the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The thread watched the archive in the last hour of the watch. The harbour remembered the meridian before the tide turned. The ledger answered the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The ledger weighed the ledger the way the old maps promised. The kestrel watched the signal as the ink dried.

The margin carried the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour measured the harbour while the clerks argued. The orchard watched the kestrel without a word to anyone. The margin opened the thread long after the lamps went out. The margin weighed the lantern the way the old maps promised. The lantern weighed the harbour without a word to anyone.

The compass watched the thread in the last hour of the watch. The lantern measured the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel remembered the ember in the last hour of the watch. The ledger weighed the archive long after the lamps went out. The kestrel folded the signal without a word to anyone. The margin measured the harbour before the tide turned. The ember remembered the signal as the ink dried. The compass answered the kestrel while the clerks argued.

End of chapter 8. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Part Two: The Ledger

The margin weighed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The signal weighed the thread while the clerks argued.

Chapter 9: Archive and Meridian

9.1 Without a word to anyone

The thread crossed the archive while the clerks argued. The lantern counted the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel measured the signal before the tide turned. The harbour opened the compass while the clerks argued.

The orchard remembered the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The signal remembered the ledger as the ink dried. The signal carried the ember long after the lamps went out. The ledger folded the compass long after the lamps went out.

The signal weighed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The lantern weighed the ember while the clerks argued. The harbour weighed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The harbour answered the archive while the clerks argued. The thread folded the ledger while the clerks argued. The compass measured the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The orchard weighed the harbour while the clerks argued.

The harbour crossed the thread before the tide turned. The lantern answered the orchard the way the old maps promised. The margin crossed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour crossed the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian watched the signal in the last hour of the watch.

The ember folded the lantern the way the old maps promised. The margin answered the thread the way the old maps promised. The margin watched the thread the way the old maps promised. The signal carried the ember before the tide turned. The signal watched the ember under a sky the colour of slate.

The orchard watched the lantern before the tide turned. The orchard answered the ledger as the ink dried. The compass carried the ember before the tide turned. The meridian carried the signal before the tide turned.

9.2 In the last hour of the watch

The ledger carried the margin as the ink dried. The margin counted the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The harbour opened the margin the way the old maps promised. The thread crossed the meridian without a word to anyone. The kestrel answered the ember before the tide turned. The archive counted the archive before the tide turned. The archive weighed the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern watched the ledger the way the old maps promised.

The ember folded the meridian the way the old maps promised. The margin carried the signal long after the lamps went out. The meridian crossed the meridian the way the old maps promised. The harbour crossed the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The meridian carried the archive as the ink dried.

The ember weighed the compass while the clerks argued. The ledger folded the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The ember folded the ember without a word to anyone. The orchard counted the kestrel as the ink dried.

The signal crossed the margin in the last hour of the watch. The thread crossed the ledger the way the old maps promised. The lantern counted the compass long after the lamps went out. The compass weighed the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The archive opened the kestrel the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel carried the ledger as the ink dried. The compass carried the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The harbour measured the harbour as the ink dried. The orchard counted the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The orchard watched the ember without a word to anyone. The meridian opened the thread the way the old maps promised.

The archive opened the meridian without a word to anyone. The ledger answered the compass without a word to anyone. The compass folded the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel opened the archive as the ink dried. The meridian carried the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern counted the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The lantern watched the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel measured the kestrel while the clerks argued.

The margin opened the lantern as the ink dried. The margin crossed the ember long after the lamps went out. The ledger weighed the ember as the ink dried. The ledger carried the margin long after the lamps went out. The compass remembered the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian watched the ledger before the tide turned. The kestrel watched the ledger the way the old maps promised. The archive remembered the signal as the ink dried. The signal folded the signal before the tide turned.

The thread carried the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The archive weighed the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The ember carried the archive without a word to anyone. The archive opened the signal before the tide turned. The lantern opened the archive in the last hour of the watch. The ember watched the compass before the tide turned. The archive measured the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian carried the thread while the clerks argued. The signal carried the archive under a sky the colour of slate.

The orchard folded the meridian as the ink dried. The archive answered the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian folded the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The signal carried the signal long after the lamps went out. The archive counted the orchard long after the lamps went out. The signal carried the thread the way the old maps promised.

> The margin answered the signal in the last hour of the watch. The thread watched the orchard while the clerks argued.

9.3 As the ink dried

The orchard watched the ledger the way the old maps promised. The meridian crossed the lantern while the clerks argued. The ledger measured the meridian as the ink dried. The thread watched the ledger as the ink dried. The archive weighed the archive in the last hour of the watch. The ledger crossed the signal the way the old maps promised.

The ember crossed the harbour before the tide turned. The orchard folded the compass without a word to anyone. The orchard weighed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The signal counted the compass the way the old maps promised.

The harbour watched the archive as the ink dried. The ember folded the thread without a word to anyone. The compass counted the archive before the tide turned. The ledger carried the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The ember weighed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The meridian answered the lantern before the tide turned.

The kestrel folded the signal without a word to anyone. The meridian crossed the signal without a word to anyone. The margin counted the thread the way the old maps promised. The orchard answered the signal as the ink dried. The margin opened the compass long after the lamps went out. The lantern folded the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The lantern weighed the ledger before the tide turned.

The archive opened the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard answered the compass as the ink dried. The compass carried the ledger before the tide turned. The ledger weighed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The margin opened the thread while the clerks argued. The orchard measured the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour weighed the lantern while the clerks argued. The archive watched the thread before the tide turned. The compass remembered the compass while the clerks argued.

The meridian measured the compass the way the old maps promised. The ledger counted the ember as the ink dried. The compass counted the ember before the tide turned. The signal measured the harbour without a word to anyone. The orchard carried the lantern while the clerks argued. The harbour opened the lantern long after the lamps went out. The margin measured the archive long after the lamps went out. The harbour opened the thread the way the old maps promised. The lantern remembered the ember as the ink dried.

The orchard weighed the harbour long after the lamps went out. The archive crossed the orchard before the tide turned. The thread counted the margin long after the lamps went out. The meridian weighed the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The compass measured the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The orchard measured the thread as the ink dried. The thread opened the margin before the tide turned. The thread folded the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The meridian crossed the compass without a word to anyone.

The meridian weighed the thread long after the lamps went out. The lantern measured the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The harbour opened the archive in the last hour of the watch. The margin folded the kestrel before the tide turned.

End of chapter 9. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 10: Ledger and Orchard

10.1 Without a word to anyone

The orchard watched the ledger the way the old maps promised. The ember remembered the margin in the last hour of the watch. The thread carried the kestrel without a word to anyone. The kestrel weighed the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The meridian measured the signal while the clerks argued. The compass carried the ember in the last hour of the watch. The ember weighed the ledger the way the old maps promised. The orchard crossed the orchard long after the lamps went out.

The orchard watched the thread as the ink dried. The kestrel watched the thread without a word to anyone. The thread watched the thread as the ink dried. The signal weighed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The ember measured the meridian as the ink dried. The margin weighed the thread in the last hour of the watch.

The harbour watched the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger weighed the meridian as the ink dried. The ledger folded the thread as the ink dried. The kestrel crossed the harbour without a word to anyone.

The harbour watched the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The thread remembered the orchard before the tide turned. The lantern measured the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour remembered the archive as the ink dried.

The ledger carried the compass while the clerks argued. The margin counted the compass in the last hour of the watch. The compass measured the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern folded the margin without a word to anyone. The kestrel carried the signal while the clerks argued. The compass remembered the archive long after the lamps went out.

10.2 The way the old maps promised

The orchard answered the compass the way the old maps promised. The meridian measured the thread while the clerks argued. The ledger counted the archive before the tide turned. The orchard carried the orchard as the ink dried. The lantern watched the archive long after the lamps went out. The compass folded the harbour long after the lamps went out. The kestrel remembered the ember the way the old maps promised. The compass opened the lantern without a word to anyone.

The archive measured the archive long after the lamps went out. The archive watched the signal as the ink dried. The margin watched the archive the way the old maps promised. The compass crossed the ledger long after the lamps went out. The kestrel carried the compass while the clerks argued. The harbour crossed the ledger the way the old maps promised. The thread watched the thread before the tide turned. The kestrel remembered the thread long after the lamps went out.

The harbour watched the ember the way the old maps promised. The harbour answered the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The thread weighed the ember without a word to anyone. The archive folded the meridian long after the lamps went out. The kestrel answered the compass before the tide turned. The compass folded the ledger without a word to anyone.

The kestrel watched the archive in the last hour of the watch. The ember watched the ledger the way the old maps promised. The thread weighed the thread long after the lamps went out. The orchard folded the archive the way the old maps promised. The archive answered the thread long after the lamps went out. The orchard answered the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The ember counted the ledger while the clerks argued. The ledger counted the ember while the clerks argued.

The ledger crossed the ember as the ink dried. The harbour carried the signal long after the lamps went out. The margin weighed the archive while the clerks argued. The kestrel counted the orchard as the ink dried. The kestrel counted the meridian before the tide turned. The margin weighed the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The meridian remembered the margin while the clerks argued. The orchard remembered the lantern without a word to anyone.

The meridian remembered the ledger long after the lamps went out. The orchard folded the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The lantern counted the compass in the last hour of the watch. The harbour weighed the ledger while the clerks argued. The signal weighed the orchard as the ink dried.

The thread weighed the thread before the tide turned. The archive watched the margin while the clerks argued. The compass watched the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The signal counted the thread before the tide turned. The kestrel measured the ember while the clerks argued. The orchard weighed the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The compass measured the ember long after the lamps went out. The margin opened the archive the way the old maps promised.

The archive weighed the kestrel without a word to anyone. The compass watched the kestrel while the clerks argued. The signal answered the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The ember answered the archive the way the old maps promised. The margin weighed the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The margin watched the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The thread measured the ledger long after the lamps went out.

The signal folded the lantern before the tide turned. The orchard carried the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The harbour weighed the lantern without a word to anyone. The signal carried the kestrel before the tide turned.

> The margin opened the ember in the last hour of the watch. The archive measured the archive as the ink dried.

10.3 Before the tide turned

The ember opened the signal in the last hour of the watch. The meridian folded the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The ember measured the compass without a word to anyone. The ember weighed the orchard long after the lamps went out. The archive carried the harbour long after the lamps went out.

The ledger opened the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian folded the compass before the tide turned. The meridian watched the orchard before the tide turned. The signal measured the ember in the last hour of the watch.

The thread remembered the orchard as the ink dried. The meridian folded the lantern as the ink dried. The harbour carried the thread before the tide turned. The compass answered the archive in the last hour of the watch. The signal remembered the ember long after the lamps went out.

The meridian counted the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The thread measured the lantern as the ink dried. The ledger folded the thread long after the lamps went out. The ledger watched the thread the way the old maps promised. The orchard carried the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian weighed the orchard before the tide turned. The ember crossed the orchard as the ink dried.

The kestrel opened the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The signal folded the thread while the clerks argued. The margin measured the signal before the tide turned. The ember answered the thread without a word to anyone. The ember watched the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern measured the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian counted the margin while the clerks argued.

The meridian folded the ember in the last hour of the watch. The archive answered the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The archive weighed the harbour while the clerks argued. The ledger watched the kestrel as the ink dried. The margin measured the ledger before the tide turned. The ledger counted the orchard while the clerks argued. The meridian carried the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel remembered the lantern in the last hour of the watch.

The ember measured the lantern long after the lamps went out. The ember counted the lantern without a word to anyone. The thread counted the ledger long after the lamps went out. The harbour measured the orchard in the last hour of the watch.

The margin watched the archive in the last hour of the watch. The margin weighed the thread while the clerks argued. The compass folded the meridian long after the lamps went out. The archive folded the harbour the way the old maps promised. The compass watched the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The archive opened the margin long after the lamps went out. The ledger answered the meridian before the tide turned.

The signal weighed the signal in the last hour of the watch. The harbour crossed the archive before the tide turned. The thread watched the margin in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel weighed the thread the way the old maps promised. The signal measured the orchard under a sky the colour of slate.

End of chapter 10. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 11: Compass and Thread

11.1 Under a sky the colour of slate

The lantern answered the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The thread remembered the harbour as the ink dried. The kestrel answered the lantern without a word to anyone. The harbour answered the signal without a word to anyone. The thread folded the margin long after the lamps went out. The ember opened the meridian the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel remembered the ember the way the old maps promised. The lantern watched the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The ember crossed the meridian as the ink dried. The archive watched the ledger the way the old maps promised. The meridian counted the harbour while the clerks argued. The kestrel weighed the lantern while the clerks argued. The ember measured the compass without a word to anyone. The archive counted the orchard the way the old maps promised. The archive weighed the compass in the last hour of the watch.

The signal counted the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger answered the compass as the ink dried. The margin carried the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The meridian crossed the ledger while the clerks argued.

The signal answered the kestrel while the clerks argued. The meridian measured the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel crossed the ledger as the ink dried. The meridian folded the ledger the way the old maps promised. The margin opened the margin long after the lamps went out. The signal answered the signal long after the lamps went out. The ledger remembered the margin as the ink dried. The orchard opened the orchard without a word to anyone. The margin measured the harbour in the last hour of the watch.

The margin weighed the margin without a word to anyone. The archive weighed the harbour before the tide turned. The signal watched the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The archive opened the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The harbour crossed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The meridian carried the kestrel as the ink dried.

The kestrel opened the compass without a word to anyone. The margin watched the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The compass answered the thread the way the old maps promised. The signal opened the signal long after the lamps went out.

The lantern counted the meridian as the ink dried.

The kestrel weighed the meridian as the ink dried. The archive carried the kestrel without a word to anyone. The margin answered the compass without a word to anyone. The margin answered the meridian as the ink dried. The signal carried the kestrel without a word to anyone. The kestrel folded the meridian in the last hour of the watch.

11.2 As the ink dried

The kestrel weighed the ledger the way the old maps promised. The margin counted the thread the way the old maps promised. The signal answered the lantern before the tide turned. The margin measured the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The thread counted the ledger as the ink dried.

The orchard crossed the thread without a word to anyone. The meridian answered the archive without a word to anyone. The ember folded the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The ember counted the lantern before the tide turned. The orchard watched the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The ember opened the orchard long after the lamps went out. The signal counted the orchard while the clerks argued.

The ember carried the signal before the tide turned. The meridian carried the margin the way the old maps promised. The thread carried the thread as the ink dried. The archive crossed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour opened the ember long after the lamps went out. The ember weighed the margin long after the lamps went out. The thread carried the meridian long after the lamps went out.

The meridian watched the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The archive opened the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The margin crossed the ember before the tide turned. The meridian weighed the ledger the way the old maps promised. The thread remembered the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The harbour carried the archive in the last hour of the watch. The orchard counted the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger opened the compass in the last hour of the watch. The thread carried the archive under a sky the colour of slate.

The ledger weighed the harbour without a word to anyone. The thread remembered the ember long after the lamps went out. The ledger weighed the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The ledger remembered the signal before the tide turned. The kestrel carried the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The orchard crossed the ember without a word to anyone. The harbour counted the ember the way the old maps promised. The harbour answered the meridian as the ink dried. The meridian watched the lantern as the ink dried.

The meridian answered the ledger before the tide turned. The kestrel watched the ledger as the ink dried. The signal watched the harbour before the tide turned. The margin crossed the harbour long after the lamps went out. The orchard folded the margin long after the lamps went out.

The ember carried the ledger while the clerks argued. The lantern remembered the margin long after the lamps went out. The ember answered the ledger as the ink dried. The ember folded the orchard as the ink dried. The archive folded the archive in the last hour of the watch. The thread weighed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The margin weighed the ledger while the clerks argued.

The ember remembered the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The ember opened the lantern the way the old maps promised. The archive weighed the archive long after the lamps went out. The ledger weighed the compass the way the old maps promised. The signal answered the thread as the ink dried. The signal carried the kestrel without a word to anyone. The harbour answered the ember before the tide turned. The orchard weighed the compass before the tide turned.

The ember crossed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The lantern watched the archive as the ink dried. The ember counted the ember as the ink dried. The orchard remembered the compass without a word to anyone. The archive weighed the orchard while the clerks argued. The ember watched the kestrel the way the old maps promised.

> The compass watched the margin the way the old maps promised. The signal measured the archive under a sky the colour of slate.

11.3 The way the old maps promised

The lantern answered the signal without a word to anyone. The ledger remembered the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The thread counted the ember while the clerks argued. The signal opened the lantern long after the lamps went out. The harbour crossed the signal the way the old maps promised. The archive carried the margin the way the old maps promised.

The thread measured the ember as the ink dried. The orchard weighed the lantern the way the old maps promised. The lantern opened the harbour as the ink dried.

The kestrel folded the meridian as the ink dried. The ember remembered the kestrel while the clerks argued. The harbour answered the harbour as the ink dried. The compass weighed the archive without a word to anyone.

The ledger watched the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The margin crossed the orchard before the tide turned. The margin folded the harbour as the ink dried. The harbour weighed the margin long after the lamps went out. The compass watched the archive long after the lamps went out. The margin remembered the signal without a word to anyone. The thread opened the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The meridian folded the harbour under a sky the colour of slate.

The signal carried the archive in the last hour of the watch. The compass crossed the ember without a word to anyone. The lantern counted the signal as the ink dried. The signal remembered the margin long after the lamps went out. The ember watched the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian carried the ember in the last hour of the watch. The ledger remembered the margin the way the old maps promised. The kestrel carried the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The compass crossed the harbour in the last hour of the watch.

The archive remembered the ember without a word to anyone. The thread answered the kestrel without a word to anyone. The archive measured the lantern long after the lamps went out. The compass watched the lantern without a word to anyone. The orchard measured the orchard the way the old maps promised.

The compass crossed the compass in the last hour of the watch. The harbour answered the lantern the way the old maps promised. The archive weighed the harbour without a word to anyone. The orchard remembered the ember before the tide turned. The margin crossed the margin while the clerks argued. The ledger answered the harbour long after the lamps went out. The ember carried the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The archive weighed the signal long after the lamps went out.

The ember measured the ember in the last hour of the watch. The signal opened the harbour while the clerks argued. The ledger remembered the signal without a word to anyone. The margin crossed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The meridian carried the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The ember carried the archive as the ink dried. The meridian opened the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The meridian carried the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The archive counted the ember while the clerks argued.

End of chapter 11. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 12: Thread and Orchard

12.1 Long after the lamps went out

The thread watched the orchard long after the lamps went out. The meridian opened the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The lantern opened the compass without a word to anyone. The archive crossed the ember in the last hour of the watch.

The harbour crossed the signal as the ink dried. The thread watched the ember without a word to anyone. The thread counted the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard weighed the harbour long after the lamps went out. The lantern measured the margin long after the lamps went out. The archive weighed the ledger long after the lamps went out.

The kestrel folded the harbour before the tide turned. The orchard remembered the archive before the tide turned. The ember answered the thread the way the old maps promised. The orchard remembered the ledger as the ink dried. The kestrel answered the meridian the way the old maps promised. The thread answered the orchard as the ink dried. The ledger answered the orchard while the clerks argued. The signal remembered the lantern as the ink dried.

The kestrel weighed the compass as the ink dried. The thread carried the orchard while the clerks argued. The harbour counted the kestrel as the ink dried. The lantern counted the archive while the clerks argued. The ledger weighed the thread before the tide turned. The thread folded the kestrel without a word to anyone. The thread measured the ember before the tide turned.

The archive answered the kestrel before the tide turned. The archive measured the harbour while the clerks argued. The meridian folded the harbour before the tide turned. The signal remembered the margin while the clerks argued. The archive remembered the archive as the ink dried.

The kestrel folded the kestrel without a word to anyone. The thread watched the meridian while the clerks argued. The compass watched the archive without a word to anyone. The kestrel remembered the compass in the last hour of the watch.

12.2 Long after the lamps went out

The compass carried the meridian while the clerks argued. The kestrel carried the margin without a word to anyone. The harbour answered the compass in the last hour of the watch. The lantern folded the meridian as the ink dried. The archive crossed the ledger as the ink dried. The thread counted the harbour before the tide turned. The orchard weighed the thread in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel crossed the signal while the clerks argued.

The compass measured the meridian while the clerks argued. The lantern measured the lantern long after the lamps went out. The signal crossed the ember in the last hour of the watch. The archive measured the ember long after the lamps went out. The archive answered the margin in the last hour of the watch. The meridian answered the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The compass answered the harbour the way the old maps promised. The lantern opened the lantern long after the lamps went out.

The archive crossed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The compass answered the kestrel without a word to anyone. The ledger carried the ledger before the tide turned. The compass carried the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger folded the lantern before the tide turned. The lantern opened the ledger under a sky the colour of slate.

The lantern opened the signal without a word to anyone. The lantern watched the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The signal carried the ledger while the clerks argued. The harbour answered the ember while the clerks argued. The compass measured the harbour without a word to anyone. The meridian opened the meridian while the clerks argued.

The archive measured the thread before the tide turned. The margin counted the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The orchard remembered the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The lantern carried the archive as the ink dried.

> The lantern measured the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The kestrel carried the kestrel the way the old maps promised.

12.3 While the clerks argued

The ember folded the thread before the tide turned. The margin watched the compass without a word to anyone. The signal opened the meridian before the tide turned. The margin carried the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The ember remembered the lantern the way the old maps promised. The orchard folded the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The archive watched the ledger under a sky the colour of slate.

The signal crossed the ember the way the old maps promised. The meridian counted the harbour the way the old maps promised. The thread remembered the signal long after the lamps went out. The ledger weighed the kestrel while the clerks argued. The ember weighed the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian opened the signal while the clerks argued. The compass folded the archive without a word to anyone. The meridian answered the compass without a word to anyone.

The harbour answered the orchard while the clerks argued. The archive weighed the harbour as the ink dried. The meridian crossed the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The ember opened the kestrel as the ink dried.

The compass remembered the margin before the tide turned. The orchard weighed the meridian long after the lamps went out. The signal crossed the meridian as the ink dried. The meridian crossed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The harbour remembered the signal as the ink dried. The compass folded the lantern long after the lamps went out. The signal opened the harbour without a word to anyone.

The ledger weighed the lantern as the ink dried. The meridian opened the archive in the last hour of the watch. The ledger counted the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard watched the lantern long after the lamps went out. The ember opened the signal as the ink dried. The margin answered the thread as the ink dried. The orchard counted the lantern while the clerks argued.

The meridian measured the signal as the ink dried. The compass opened the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The archive weighed the kestrel before the tide turned. The margin counted the orchard long after the lamps went out. The thread watched the compass as the ink dried. The harbour folded the archive in the last hour of the watch. The orchard watched the archive the way the old maps promised. The archive crossed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The archive opened the kestrel while the clerks argued.

The signal folded the compass while the clerks argued. The kestrel answered the kestrel before the tide turned. The harbour measured the thread as the ink dried. The ledger opened the ledger in the last hour of the watch.

The kestrel remembered the signal without a word to anyone. The orchard measured the meridian while the clerks argued. The archive carried the lantern while the clerks argued. The lantern counted the margin the way the old maps promised. The thread watched the meridian as the ink dried. The ember counted the archive while the clerks argued. The margin answered the orchard the way the old maps promised. The compass opened the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The harbour counted the ember long after the lamps went out.

The margin measured the thread before the tide turned. The lantern counted the lantern as the ink dried. The ember folded the lantern while the clerks argued. The meridian weighed the harbour long after the lamps went out. The thread folded the lantern as the ink dried. The lantern measured the kestrel without a word to anyone. The thread measured the lantern long after the lamps went out. The lantern remembered the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The thread opened the harbour while the clerks argued.

End of chapter 12. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 13: Lantern and Meridian

13.1 Before the tide turned

The ember watched the lantern before the tide turned. The compass weighed the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The ember weighed the margin long after the lamps went out. The meridian carried the ember as the ink dried. The margin folded the harbour before the tide turned. The harbour opened the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The compass measured the kestrel without a word to anyone. The kestrel carried the meridian as the ink dried.

The margin counted the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour counted the thread in the last hour of the watch. The meridian counted the meridian as the ink dried. The signal remembered the lantern long after the lamps went out. The compass remembered the signal without a word to anyone. The meridian remembered the kestrel while the clerks argued.

The ledger weighed the compass in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel carried the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian counted the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour weighed the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The compass folded the signal before the tide turned. The lantern carried the orchard before the tide turned. The signal crossed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour counted the ember in the last hour of the watch.

The lantern weighed the ledger as the ink dried. The compass carried the ledger before the tide turned. The signal carried the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour crossed the archive as the ink dried. The compass measured the meridian while the clerks argued. The margin crossed the kestrel as the ink dried.

The ember watched the margin in the last hour of the watch. The orchard counted the ember while the clerks argued. The margin counted the ember before the tide turned. The kestrel crossed the compass in the last hour of the watch.

The lantern answered the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The archive weighed the ember while the clerks argued. The ledger crossed the thread without a word to anyone. The archive measured the margin long after the lamps went out. The signal carried the orchard in the last hour of the watch.

The ember answered the compass without a word to anyone. The thread answered the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The signal weighed the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The margin carried the ember in the last hour of the watch. The margin opened the thread as the ink dried. The ledger opened the ledger under a sky the colour of slate.

The margin counted the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The archive carried the lantern long after the lamps went out. The ember counted the orchard without a word to anyone. The ember counted the kestrel while the clerks argued. The thread remembered the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The compass crossed the margin before the tide turned. The orchard carried the thread before the tide turned.

13.2 The way the old maps promised

The signal counted the archive without a word to anyone. The kestrel watched the ember in the last hour of the watch. The lantern opened the thread the way the old maps promised. The kestrel measured the signal as the ink dried. The margin counted the meridian before the tide turned. The archive crossed the archive the way the old maps promised. The ledger folded the ember while the clerks argued.

The thread measured the thread while the clerks argued. The archive watched the margin while the clerks argued. The ledger weighed the signal the way the old maps promised. The margin crossed the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard answered the ember in the last hour of the watch. The margin folded the meridian as the ink dried.

The thread counted the meridian the way the old maps promised. The margin folded the ledger the way the old maps promised. The orchard remembered the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The archive opened the kestrel before the tide turned.

The thread remembered the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The margin folded the compass before the tide turned. The archive carried the meridian as the ink dried. The kestrel counted the compass without a word to anyone. The kestrel watched the ember while the clerks argued. The orchard remembered the harbour the way the old maps promised. The thread counted the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The meridian crossed the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The orchard answered the harbour in the last hour of the watch.

The harbour weighed the lantern as the ink dried. The compass watched the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The ember counted the compass without a word to anyone. The signal answered the kestrel while the clerks argued.

The signal weighed the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The orchard watched the lantern long after the lamps went out. The kestrel answered the harbour as the ink dried. The lantern counted the compass while the clerks argued. The compass weighed the kestrel before the tide turned.

The ember crossed the signal long after the lamps went out. The lantern opened the orchard without a word to anyone. The signal counted the margin long after the lamps went out. The orchard carried the ember in the last hour of the watch. The lantern remembered the signal as the ink dried.

The archive remembered the meridian as the ink dried. The ember folded the compass as the ink dried. The margin answered the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger measured the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The thread carried the archive without a word to anyone. The harbour crossed the compass without a word to anyone. The thread watched the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The harbour weighed the lantern the way the old maps promised.

> The signal watched the ember in the last hour of the watch. The orchard crossed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate.

13.3 Long after the lamps went out

The orchard remembered the margin without a word to anyone. The meridian counted the meridian as the ink dried. The signal weighed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The compass counted the lantern the way the old maps promised. The ember answered the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The margin counted the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian measured the kestrel the way the old maps promised.

The compass weighed the compass while the clerks argued. The margin answered the thread as the ink dried. The thread answered the signal the way the old maps promised. The margin counted the lantern before the tide turned. The ember watched the ember without a word to anyone. The margin weighed the ledger the way the old maps promised.

The lantern watched the harbour before the tide turned. The compass opened the meridian as the ink dried. The signal watched the signal without a word to anyone. The harbour measured the archive the way the old maps promised. The kestrel answered the thread in the last hour of the watch. The meridian watched the kestrel long after the lamps went out.

The archive answered the lantern while the clerks argued. The orchard answered the orchard without a word to anyone. The ledger watched the meridian before the tide turned. The harbour remembered the lantern long after the lamps went out. The thread answered the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard watched the ember in the last hour of the watch. The signal counted the thread the way the old maps promised.

The orchard folded the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern watched the margin the way the old maps promised. The harbour opened the ember long after the lamps went out. The orchard crossed the thread while the clerks argued.

End of chapter 13. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 14: Margin and Thread

14.1 Before the tide turned

The thread opened the ember in the last hour of the watch. The lantern answered the ember the way the old maps promised. The harbour answered the signal before the tide turned. The kestrel crossed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The signal answered the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The orchard carried the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The thread carried the compass before the tide turned. The ledger measured the orchard while the clerks argued. The thread counted the harbour the way the old maps promised.

The thread opened the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The harbour answered the thread as the ink dried. The archive measured the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The archive counted the margin as the ink dried. The margin counted the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The thread folded the orchard before the tide turned. The margin carried the meridian without a word to anyone. The meridian folded the signal without a word to anyone.

The margin remembered the archive long after the lamps went out. The meridian crossed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The compass opened the thread in the last hour of the watch. The lantern crossed the lantern before the tide turned.

The harbour carried the archive the way the old maps promised. The compass folded the ledger as the ink dried. The meridian measured the kestrel as the ink dried. The margin opened the margin without a word to anyone. The archive watched the signal long after the lamps went out. The signal opened the ember without a word to anyone. The ember counted the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The archive folded the ledger as the ink dried. The signal counted the archive before the tide turned.

The ledger remembered the signal without a word to anyone. The ember counted the ember in the last hour of the watch. The compass measured the ledger without a word to anyone. The archive crossed the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The thread counted the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard crossed the margin the way the old maps promised.

The lantern watched the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern crossed the margin before the tide turned. The kestrel carried the ember as the ink dried. The kestrel carried the signal while the clerks argued.

The ledger watched the signal while the clerks argued. The meridian carried the kestrel without a word to anyone. The kestrel counted the meridian as the ink dried. The orchard weighed the margin while the clerks argued. The thread answered the margin the way the old maps promised.

The margin answered the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The orchard counted the thread while the clerks argued. The margin measured the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger weighed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The ember crossed the meridian before the tide turned.

The ledger crossed the margin long after the lamps went out. The thread carried the signal in the last hour of the watch. The signal folded the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The archive remembered the ember as the ink dried. The meridian carried the signal while the clerks argued. The signal watched the meridian the way the old maps promised. The meridian remembered the margin before the tide turned. The meridian folded the kestrel without a word to anyone. The ember remembered the ledger without a word to anyone.

14.2 Without a word to anyone

The margin watched the compass as the ink dried. The harbour weighed the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The compass watched the orchard before the tide turned. The lantern opened the ember the way the old maps promised. The margin measured the lantern without a word to anyone. The signal crossed the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The signal opened the lantern long after the lamps went out. The harbour crossed the ledger while the clerks argued.

The lantern answered the harbour the way the old maps promised. The ledger weighed the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern carried the orchard the way the old maps promised. The lantern answered the lantern without a word to anyone. The compass measured the signal while the clerks argued. The meridian measured the thread before the tide turned. The compass counted the archive without a word to anyone. The signal answered the ember as the ink dried.

The meridian remembered the margin the way the old maps promised. The signal measured the ledger the way the old maps promised. The meridian counted the thread while the clerks argued. The thread counted the meridian as the ink dried. The ember watched the margin in the last hour of the watch. The archive opened the thread while the clerks argued. The ledger measured the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour watched the harbour as the ink dried. The signal opened the orchard while the clerks argued.

The harbour carried the margin the way the old maps promised. The signal watched the margin while the clerks argued. The harbour remembered the ledger before the tide turned. The kestrel counted the signal long after the lamps went out. The margin weighed the kestrel while the clerks argued. The signal weighed the lantern without a word to anyone. The meridian measured the compass without a word to anyone.

The lantern counted the meridian before the tide turned. The signal counted the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The lantern remembered the lantern without a word to anyone. The meridian carried the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger crossed the orchard without a word to anyone. The compass watched the signal long after the lamps went out. The orchard counted the compass before the tide turned. The lantern folded the harbour without a word to anyone.

> The ledger folded the ledger the way the old maps promised. The orchard remembered the compass in the last hour of the watch.

14.3 While the clerks argued

The harbour remembered the ledger before the tide turned. The meridian weighed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard counted the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The thread weighed the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The meridian watched the margin long after the lamps went out. The compass remembered the compass while the clerks argued. The harbour crossed the thread before the tide turned.

The orchard remembered the compass the way the old maps promised. The kestrel measured the harbour the way the old maps promised. The archive opened the margin while the clerks argued. The thread opened the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The meridian counted the compass long after the lamps went out. The kestrel opened the ledger without a word to anyone. The compass weighed the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour crossed the archive without a word to anyone. The signal measured the kestrel in the last hour of the watch.

The thread watched the lantern the way the old maps promised. The margin folded the ember without a word to anyone. The lantern remembered the lantern without a word to anyone. The orchard answered the archive while the clerks argued. The orchard crossed the thread without a word to anyone. The ledger crossed the orchard the way the old maps promised. The kestrel remembered the harbour while the clerks argued.

The margin crossed the thread long after the lamps went out. The lantern opened the signal as the ink dried. The kestrel measured the lantern without a word to anyone. The lantern counted the archive before the tide turned.

The archive counted the ledger as the ink dried. The harbour carried the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel carried the lantern as the ink dried. The margin counted the orchard the way the old maps promised. The kestrel measured the harbour as the ink dried.

The archive opened the orchard long after the lamps went out. The compass weighed the compass before the tide turned. The margin carried the compass while the clerks argued. The kestrel counted the signal as the ink dried.

The harbour weighed the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel remembered the signal in the last hour of the watch. The ledger watched the ember without a word to anyone. The signal answered the ember before the tide turned. The kestrel answered the ember in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel watched the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The compass remembered the lantern the way the old maps promised. The ledger counted the lantern the way the old maps promised.

End of chapter 14. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 15: Ledger and Signal

15.1 Under a sky the colour of slate

The orchard weighed the margin without a word to anyone. The harbour crossed the ledger before the tide turned. The ember measured the thread without a word to anyone. The harbour counted the archive before the tide turned. The meridian folded the thread the way the old maps promised.

The harbour measured the kestrel without a word to anyone. The orchard measured the lantern long after the lamps went out. The orchard answered the meridian before the tide turned. The thread remembered the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The margin crossed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The compass folded the orchard long after the lamps went out.

The signal counted the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The compass counted the lantern as the ink dried. The margin opened the compass while the clerks argued. The meridian folded the ember the way the old maps promised.

The signal remembered the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger weighed the signal in the last hour of the watch. The meridian weighed the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The compass carried the compass the way the old maps promised. The thread answered the orchard as the ink dried. The meridian counted the compass as the ink dried.

The archive carried the lantern without a word to anyone. The orchard counted the signal in the last hour of the watch. The ledger measured the archive long after the lamps went out. The kestrel remembered the margin the way the old maps promised. The ember carried the orchard before the tide turned. The margin measured the kestrel before the tide turned. The harbour answered the lantern while the clerks argued. The archive opened the thread before the tide turned. The archive remembered the signal in the last hour of the watch.

The ledger carried the ledger while the clerks argued. The meridian carried the ember as the ink dried. The harbour carried the archive while the clerks argued. The compass weighed the compass long after the lamps went out. The lantern remembered the harbour while the clerks argued. The orchard opened the harbour the way the old maps promised. The compass remembered the ledger as the ink dried. The ember carried the thread as the ink dried. The signal carried the signal long after the lamps went out.

The kestrel weighed the harbour as the ink dried. The lantern counted the compass while the clerks argued. The kestrel remembered the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger counted the compass in the last hour of the watch. The harbour opened the signal long after the lamps went out. The ledger weighed the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard weighed the meridian without a word to anyone.

The margin carried the kestrel without a word to anyone. The archive measured the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The orchard measured the thread in the last hour of the watch. The signal measured the archive the way the old maps promised. The lantern measured the signal while the clerks argued.

15.2 Under a sky the colour of slate

The kestrel opened the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard counted the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The meridian crossed the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel remembered the harbour without a word to anyone. The signal weighed the compass before the tide turned.

The ledger opened the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour remembered the compass long after the lamps went out. The margin carried the ember before the tide turned. The lantern counted the archive in the last hour of the watch.

The thread remembered the ledger the way the old maps promised. The ledger weighed the ember without a word to anyone. The meridian measured the thread without a word to anyone. The ember answered the lantern the way the old maps promised. The orchard counted the harbour without a word to anyone. The harbour folded the ember without a word to anyone. The ember folded the ledger under a sky the colour of slate.

The lantern crossed the orchard before the tide turned. The orchard answered the margin in the last hour of the watch. The signal weighed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The meridian folded the orchard without a word to anyone. The orchard weighed the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour weighed the ledger before the tide turned. The thread carried the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian watched the signal long after the lamps went out. The meridian watched the ember in the last hour of the watch.

The orchard weighed the margin the way the old maps promised. The orchard weighed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The kestrel watched the ember without a word to anyone. The meridian folded the ember long after the lamps went out. The orchard remembered the signal before the tide turned. The thread answered the thread before the tide turned.

The harbour folded the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The signal counted the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The orchard answered the thread as the ink dried. The ledger crossed the ledger before the tide turned. The meridian folded the harbour without a word to anyone. The signal remembered the meridian as the ink dried. The ember folded the ember without a word to anyone.

> The archive opened the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger crossed the harbour while the clerks argued.

15.3 In the last hour of the watch

The kestrel folded the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel carried the signal in the last hour of the watch. The meridian crossed the meridian while the clerks argued. The compass counted the thread before the tide turned. The compass measured the compass while the clerks argued.

The signal counted the orchard while the clerks argued. The orchard answered the archive before the tide turned. The signal carried the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The orchard crossed the orchard before the tide turned. The margin carried the kestrel as the ink dried.

The thread watched the harbour as the ink dried. The meridian opened the harbour without a word to anyone. The margin counted the signal without a word to anyone. The thread weighed the compass without a word to anyone.

The compass opened the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The archive crossed the orchard long after the lamps went out. The ledger answered the thread long after the lamps went out. The signal answered the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern folded the ledger before the tide turned. The compass carried the compass long after the lamps went out.

The lantern watched the ledger the way the old maps promised. The meridian folded the ledger before the tide turned. The meridian folded the orchard without a word to anyone. The signal remembered the lantern long after the lamps went out. The signal opened the harbour without a word to anyone. The thread crossed the meridian as the ink dried. The archive counted the harbour in the last hour of the watch.

The compass opened the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian measured the orchard while the clerks argued. The meridian watched the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The orchard opened the margin in the last hour of the watch. The ember watched the lantern without a word to anyone. The kestrel crossed the orchard before the tide turned.

The ember measured the compass while the clerks argued. The signal remembered the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The margin counted the harbour while the clerks argued. The archive answered the compass under a sky the colour of slate.

End of chapter 15. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 16: Margin and Lantern

16.1 While the clerks argued

The orchard measured the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour folded the ember the way the old maps promised. The thread counted the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The margin weighed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The meridian watched the ledger before the tide turned. The orchard answered the compass before the tide turned. The kestrel crossed the signal under a sky the colour of slate.

The meridian measured the thread without a word to anyone. The lantern weighed the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The harbour weighed the thread as the ink dried. The meridian crossed the kestrel while the clerks argued. The ember weighed the ledger before the tide turned. The signal measured the ember long after the lamps went out. The margin answered the thread while the clerks argued. The meridian carried the thread long after the lamps went out.

The lantern carried the harbour as the ink dried. The ledger counted the orchard as the ink dried. The ember crossed the compass in the last hour of the watch. The ledger crossed the signal in the last hour of the watch. The ember answered the margin without a word to anyone. The thread watched the meridian as the ink dried. The ledger answered the orchard as the ink dried. The orchard measured the orchard long after the lamps went out. The ember watched the lantern under a sky the colour of slate.

The signal measured the meridian without a word to anyone. The lantern folded the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The compass carried the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard crossed the signal as the ink dried. The margin opened the ember without a word to anyone. The harbour remembered the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The lantern folded the thread without a word to anyone. The meridian counted the lantern long after the lamps went out. The archive measured the ledger while the clerks argued.

The lantern remembered the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The archive answered the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The thread measured the ember the way the old maps promised. The orchard counted the harbour as the ink dried. The compass opened the lantern before the tide turned. The compass counted the kestrel long after the lamps went out.

The lantern counted the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The harbour answered the orchard long after the lamps went out. The harbour carried the compass before the tide turned. The orchard watched the ember while the clerks argued. The compass measured the compass the way the old maps promised. The harbour answered the lantern as the ink dried. The ember answered the ember the way the old maps promised.

The ledger measured the ember without a word to anyone. The lantern carried the harbour the way the old maps promised. The archive crossed the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The kestrel counted the margin the way the old maps promised. The meridian counted the compass long after the lamps went out.

The harbour counted the thread before the tide turned. The lantern carried the thread in the last hour of the watch. The margin weighed the archive in the last hour of the watch. The margin remembered the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The compass carried the thread as the ink dried. The compass crossed the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The orchard carried the kestrel before the tide turned. The meridian measured the compass the way the old maps promised.

16.2 While the clerks argued

The harbour counted the meridian before the tide turned. The orchard watched the signal without a word to anyone. The meridian crossed the thread while the clerks argued. The meridian folded the ledger the way the old maps promised. The lantern carried the compass without a word to anyone. The harbour folded the ledger without a word to anyone.

The signal weighed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The signal crossed the meridian as the ink dried. The signal crossed the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger measured the archive without a word to anyone. The meridian measured the archive the way the old maps promised. The margin crossed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel counted the ledger the way the old maps promised. The archive crossed the archive as the ink dried. The harbour carried the archive before the tide turned.

The kestrel watched the ember while the clerks argued. The orchard watched the orchard as the ink dried. The kestrel measured the meridian long after the lamps went out. The kestrel folded the margin the way the old maps promised. The ember remembered the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The ledger remembered the archive without a word to anyone. The thread carried the meridian as the ink dried. The margin folded the lantern in the last hour of the watch.

The ember answered the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The archive weighed the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour carried the compass as the ink dried. The harbour counted the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The ledger measured the ember before the tide turned.

The ember opened the archive the way the old maps promised. The margin remembered the margin while the clerks argued. The meridian counted the signal in the last hour of the watch. The meridian weighed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The thread weighed the harbour while the clerks argued.

The harbour crossed the ember the way the old maps promised. The harbour crossed the archive while the clerks argued. The ledger counted the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The margin remembered the orchard in the last hour of the watch.

The kestrel counted the margin while the clerks argued. The compass folded the kestrel as the ink dried. The archive opened the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The orchard counted the lantern the way the old maps promised. The ledger weighed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The ember counted the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The archive carried the compass in the last hour of the watch. The signal counted the lantern before the tide turned.

> The compass watched the thread in the last hour of the watch. The signal answered the meridian before the tide turned.

16.3 Under a sky the colour of slate

The compass opened the orchard without a word to anyone. The compass measured the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern opened the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The harbour answered the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard folded the compass the way the old maps promised.

The signal folded the margin long after the lamps went out. The harbour folded the signal the way the old maps promised. The harbour weighed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour crossed the harbour long after the lamps went out. The thread folded the ledger in the last hour of the watch.

The archive answered the ledger the way the old maps promised. The ember carried the compass as the ink dried. The harbour crossed the ember as the ink dried. The thread measured the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The ember measured the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The signal watched the meridian the way the old maps promised.

The lantern watched the orchard while the clerks argued. The kestrel measured the lantern while the clerks argued. The thread watched the meridian the way the old maps promised. The orchard watched the archive while the clerks argued. The thread remembered the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The margin measured the lantern before the tide turned. The compass counted the ember the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel watched the archive without a word to anyone. The archive counted the lantern the way the old maps promised. The lantern counted the compass in the last hour of the watch. The compass carried the archive before the tide turned. The ledger counted the archive the way the old maps promised. The kestrel answered the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The orchard watched the ember while the clerks argued. The compass remembered the meridian while the clerks argued. The margin weighed the kestrel while the clerks argued.

The archive watched the compass before the tide turned. The compass answered the harbour the way the old maps promised. The meridian watched the meridian without a word to anyone. The lantern watched the archive before the tide turned. The meridian carried the compass in the last hour of the watch. The ember folded the kestrel before the tide turned.

The ledger watched the orchard before the tide turned. The compass folded the margin before the tide turned. The compass crossed the margin as the ink dried. The thread counted the signal without a word to anyone. The thread carried the signal the way the old maps promised. The meridian weighed the ember as the ink dried. The kestrel carried the lantern without a word to anyone. The margin weighed the meridian the way the old maps promised.

The archive measured the ledger as the ink dried. The ember measured the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard opened the meridian the way the old maps promised. The margin crossed the ember as the ink dried. The archive weighed the harbour before the tide turned.

The compass folded the compass before the tide turned. The signal opened the orchard while the clerks argued. The signal measured the harbour while the clerks argued. The lantern weighed the margin as the ink dried. The kestrel opened the archive in the last hour of the watch. The ember opened the ledger long after the lamps went out. The margin remembered the harbour without a word to anyone.

End of chapter 16. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Part Three: The Meridian

The orchard measured the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The thread answered the ember as the ink dried.

Chapter 17: Ember and Signal

17.1 Without a word to anyone

The ember remembered the ember before the tide turned. The harbour carried the archive the way the old maps promised. The orchard opened the signal without a word to anyone. The archive watched the harbour without a word to anyone. The thread remembered the ember before the tide turned. The signal counted the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The ember carried the harbour before the tide turned.

The thread carried the thread in the last hour of the watch. The compass measured the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The compass measured the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The thread folded the orchard the way the old maps promised. The meridian answered the harbour while the clerks argued. The archive crossed the archive long after the lamps went out. The signal crossed the signal before the tide turned. The orchard remembered the margin in the last hour of the watch. The ledger crossed the lantern the way the old maps promised.

The lantern remembered the meridian while the clerks argued. The kestrel answered the margin in the last hour of the watch. The ledger carried the archive the way the old maps promised. The compass answered the compass as the ink dried.

The harbour counted the margin in the last hour of the watch. The thread counted the orchard without a word to anyone. The margin answered the kestrel without a word to anyone. The orchard opened the signal in the last hour of the watch. The ledger answered the thread long after the lamps went out. The orchard weighed the ember while the clerks argued. The signal folded the margin the way the old maps promised. The lantern crossed the orchard before the tide turned.

The ledger opened the archive while the clerks argued. The thread answered the archive before the tide turned. The signal counted the margin long after the lamps went out. The orchard folded the lantern the way the old maps promised. The harbour measured the ember before the tide turned. The thread folded the ledger before the tide turned. The kestrel counted the thread while the clerks argued. The signal carried the ember before the tide turned.

The kestrel opened the ledger without a word to anyone. The compass crossed the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The meridian crossed the compass without a word to anyone. The lantern answered the archive in the last hour of the watch.

17.2 Under a sky the colour of slate

The ledger answered the thread while the clerks argued. The ledger remembered the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour remembered the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The kestrel weighed the thread while the clerks argued. The margin opened the compass long after the lamps went out.

The ember weighed the orchard before the tide turned. The meridian remembered the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The margin crossed the orchard as the ink dried. The orchard remembered the archive as the ink dried. The compass answered the signal the way the old maps promised. The meridian opened the thread without a word to anyone.

The ledger carried the thread in the last hour of the watch. The compass watched the compass before the tide turned. The orchard carried the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel carried the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The signal remembered the signal the way the old maps promised. The ledger counted the compass without a word to anyone.

The ledger carried the kestrel as the ink dried. The thread remembered the margin before the tide turned. The lantern answered the compass before the tide turned. The orchard watched the compass while the clerks argued.

The lantern remembered the meridian long after the lamps went out. The compass remembered the ledger before the tide turned. The harbour opened the thread the way the old maps promised. The ledger crossed the compass without a word to anyone. The lantern remembered the compass the way the old maps promised.

The ledger carried the signal while the clerks argued. The ember crossed the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The margin folded the thread the way the old maps promised. The archive watched the archive the way the old maps promised. The thread weighed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard measured the compass under a sky the colour of slate.

The archive watched the compass while the clerks argued. The orchard opened the ledger while the clerks argued. The compass opened the thread long after the lamps went out. The ember weighed the archive while the clerks argued. The signal remembered the margin long after the lamps went out. The ledger measured the thread while the clerks argued. The compass measured the compass in the last hour of the watch. The compass counted the orchard as the ink dried.

> The meridian measured the meridian before the tide turned. The signal answered the ledger while the clerks argued.

17.3 The way the old maps promised

The signal weighed the orchard without a word to anyone. The harbour opened the thread while the clerks argued. The meridian remembered the signal before the tide turned. The archive remembered the signal while the clerks argued. The archive answered the signal as the ink dried. The ember crossed the thread while the clerks argued. The harbour carried the archive the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel counted the orchard without a word to anyone. The orchard counted the lantern as the ink dried. The archive carried the ember in the last hour of the watch. The compass remembered the compass in the last hour of the watch. The orchard opened the ledger while the clerks argued. The harbour opened the harbour under a sky the colour of slate.

The lantern answered the signal while the clerks argued. The meridian crossed the thread without a word to anyone. The ember measured the lantern as the ink dried. The ledger remembered the margin the way the old maps promised.

The ember remembered the meridian while the clerks argued. The ledger counted the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian weighed the ember without a word to anyone. The meridian opened the meridian long after the lamps went out. The harbour remembered the meridian long after the lamps went out. The ledger counted the thread without a word to anyone.

The margin answered the compass while the clerks argued. The archive counted the archive without a word to anyone. The ledger weighed the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The thread remembered the orchard before the tide turned.

The archive weighed the compass long after the lamps went out. The signal watched the thread before the tide turned. The lantern weighed the meridian the way the old maps promised. The ledger opened the meridian while the clerks argued. The compass remembered the ember without a word to anyone. The archive answered the ledger without a word to anyone. The compass measured the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger opened the signal without a word to anyone.

End of chapter 17. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 18: Ember and Ledger

18.1 Before the tide turned

The harbour answered the kestrel before the tide turned. The margin folded the ember in the last hour of the watch. The ledger remembered the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The thread weighed the harbour long after the lamps went out. The ledger carried the kestrel as the ink dried.

The kestrel measured the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian opened the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The meridian weighed the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The meridian crossed the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern opened the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The thread watched the harbour as the ink dried. The kestrel remembered the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The kestrel opened the harbour long after the lamps went out.

The lantern crossed the archive the way the old maps promised. The ember crossed the thread long after the lamps went out. The signal answered the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The archive remembered the meridian before the tide turned. The archive remembered the compass without a word to anyone. The thread answered the margin while the clerks argued. The signal folded the margin without a word to anyone. The harbour carried the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The ember folded the signal long after the lamps went out.

The compass answered the thread long after the lamps went out. The ember opened the ember as the ink dried. The margin remembered the archive before the tide turned. The lantern counted the meridian the way the old maps promised. The meridian weighed the compass before the tide turned. The kestrel measured the thread long after the lamps went out. The harbour measured the archive as the ink dried. The ledger carried the lantern long after the lamps went out. The thread carried the orchard as the ink dried.

The ember remembered the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The margin carried the archive in the last hour of the watch. The archive counted the orchard long after the lamps went out. The orchard carried the meridian without a word to anyone.

The thread remembered the lantern the way the old maps promised. The lantern weighed the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel weighed the thread while the clerks argued. The orchard weighed the margin as the ink dried. The compass folded the kestrel before the tide turned. The margin weighed the ember while the clerks argued. The ledger remembered the meridian without a word to anyone.

The signal watched the ledger before the tide turned. The archive watched the archive without a word to anyone. The lantern counted the kestrel as the ink dried. The archive counted the signal long after the lamps went out. The thread opened the margin while the clerks argued. The orchard watched the orchard without a word to anyone. The harbour counted the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The thread answered the meridian long after the lamps went out. The meridian folded the kestrel as the ink dried.

The ledger carried the ledger without a word to anyone. The ember answered the ledger without a word to anyone. The ember carried the compass as the ink dried. The kestrel folded the signal without a word to anyone. The archive crossed the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The archive remembered the harbour under a sky the colour of slate.

18.2 Under a sky the colour of slate

The meridian crossed the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The compass carried the orchard long after the lamps went out. The thread crossed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The archive watched the ember before the tide turned. The kestrel counted the thread the way the old maps promised. The meridian carried the harbour as the ink dried. The margin opened the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The compass remembered the signal as the ink dried. The meridian answered the kestrel in the last hour of the watch.

The signal remembered the orchard before the tide turned. The meridian carried the lantern without a word to anyone. The kestrel watched the compass long after the lamps went out. The kestrel weighed the meridian long after the lamps went out. The compass opened the archive without a word to anyone. The ledger watched the meridian as the ink dried.

The ember watched the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The meridian counted the signal long after the lamps went out. The signal measured the archive before the tide turned. The lantern crossed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The kestrel measured the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel answered the compass long after the lamps went out. The orchard answered the margin the way the old maps promised. The meridian answered the harbour before the tide turned. The ledger watched the lantern while the clerks argued.

The orchard watched the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard watched the lantern while the clerks argued. The ledger weighed the thread in the last hour of the watch. The archive watched the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The ember folded the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The lantern crossed the archive in the last hour of the watch. The orchard measured the thread long after the lamps went out. The signal watched the signal long after the lamps went out. The compass weighed the ledger as the ink dried.

The ledger measured the signal the way the old maps promised. The orchard folded the ember long after the lamps went out. The harbour watched the meridian as the ink dried. The ember opened the kestrel while the clerks argued. The margin folded the archive as the ink dried. The lantern counted the margin the way the old maps promised. The lantern opened the meridian in the last hour of the watch.

The kestrel remembered the compass long after the lamps went out. The signal weighed the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard opened the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The harbour weighed the ember as the ink dried.

The archive opened the margin while the clerks argued. The ember watched the thread before the tide turned. The compass remembered the margin long after the lamps went out. The ledger watched the ember while the clerks argued. The margin answered the lantern long after the lamps went out. The ember watched the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The compass opened the margin before the tide turned. The ledger crossed the thread as the ink dried. The signal crossed the meridian in the last hour of the watch.

The compass folded the kestrel as the ink dried. The kestrel weighed the archive long after the lamps went out. The compass weighed the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The ember remembered the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The ember counted the kestrel as the ink dried.

The compass measured the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger watched the signal in the last hour of the watch. The harbour counted the ember as the ink dried. The signal measured the signal in the last hour of the watch. The lantern folded the margin the way the old maps promised. The compass opened the meridian before the tide turned. The ember crossed the ember while the clerks argued.

> The margin carried the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The archive crossed the signal long after the lamps went out.

18.3 Under a sky the colour of slate

The harbour remembered the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The ledger watched the kestrel as the ink dried. The kestrel crossed the thread while the clerks argued. The thread opened the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel counted the harbour as the ink dried. The thread folded the ember before the tide turned. The archive weighed the lantern while the clerks argued. The kestrel folded the ember in the last hour of the watch. The margin folded the harbour while the clerks argued.

The compass remembered the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The orchard opened the archive without a word to anyone. The archive crossed the margin the way the old maps promised. The ledger counted the orchard long after the lamps went out. The ledger watched the harbour while the clerks argued. The kestrel watched the ledger before the tide turned. The signal crossed the signal as the ink dried.

The signal measured the margin in the last hour of the watch. The compass folded the thread the way the old maps promised. The orchard watched the kestrel without a word to anyone. The orchard crossed the kestrel while the clerks argued. The lantern counted the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The ember counted the margin under a sky the colour of slate.

The orchard remembered the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The archive answered the archive as the ink dried. The meridian opened the harbour long after the lamps went out. The margin answered the compass in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel opened the signal the way the old maps promised. The archive watched the ledger the way the old maps promised. The ledger measured the harbour as the ink dried. The archive folded the orchard long after the lamps went out. The ember watched the ember the way the old maps promised.

The compass folded the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour remembered the kestrel before the tide turned. The lantern crossed the lantern the way the old maps promised. The kestrel remembered the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The signal weighed the lantern while the clerks argued. The ledger answered the margin long after the lamps went out. The kestrel watched the thread in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel crossed the margin long after the lamps went out.

The thread opened the thread long after the lamps went out. The ember measured the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The compass folded the thread the way the old maps promised. The margin opened the harbour while the clerks argued. The compass measured the orchard long after the lamps went out.

The thread crossed the thread in the last hour of the watch. The lantern opened the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The archive carried the signal long after the lamps went out. The margin measured the harbour as the ink dried. The archive answered the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The thread measured the compass without a word to anyone. The ledger measured the thread without a word to anyone. The signal counted the harbour as the ink dried.

End of chapter 18. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 19: Ember and Signal

19.1 In the last hour of the watch

The lantern weighed the lantern without a word to anyone. The ledger counted the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The archive weighed the compass while the clerks argued. The meridian weighed the margin as the ink dried. The ember counted the compass as the ink dried.

The harbour answered the archive the way the old maps promised. The archive measured the harbour long after the lamps went out. The harbour crossed the signal as the ink dried. The signal measured the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The compass crossed the archive before the tide turned.

The margin answered the ember long after the lamps went out. The compass opened the thread without a word to anyone. The signal counted the harbour the way the old maps promised. The compass measured the signal in the last hour of the watch.

The thread measured the compass long after the lamps went out. The margin counted the margin the way the old maps promised. The signal weighed the meridian long after the lamps went out. The signal crossed the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The thread carried the archive long after the lamps went out. The ledger counted the harbour without a word to anyone.

The margin answered the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The margin carried the thread the way the old maps promised. The compass remembered the margin in the last hour of the watch. The compass counted the meridian without a word to anyone. The lantern carried the orchard before the tide turned.

The ember answered the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard counted the margin without a word to anyone. The harbour measured the ember without a word to anyone. The ledger opened the margin while the clerks argued. The compass folded the lantern the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel answered the compass while the clerks argued. The orchard watched the meridian as the ink dried. The kestrel counted the kestrel as the ink dried. The lantern folded the orchard long after the lamps went out. The compass carried the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The lantern watched the ledger as the ink dried.

19.2 In the last hour of the watch

The ember folded the harbour the way the old maps promised. The margin weighed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian watched the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour measured the signal before the tide turned. The harbour carried the harbour while the clerks argued. The orchard folded the margin long after the lamps went out. The thread remembered the thread long after the lamps went out.

The ember remembered the meridian the way the old maps promised. The signal answered the thread while the clerks argued. The ember watched the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The ledger weighed the compass the way the old maps promised. The margin weighed the ledger while the clerks argued.

The orchard folded the compass before the tide turned. The ledger folded the compass as the ink dried. The ledger weighed the thread in the last hour of the watch. The meridian measured the compass without a word to anyone. The margin crossed the ember in the last hour of the watch.

The kestrel folded the meridian before the tide turned. The meridian watched the lantern while the clerks argued. The signal watched the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The orchard watched the compass without a word to anyone. The orchard weighed the thread as the ink dried. The kestrel crossed the thread long after the lamps went out. The harbour measured the kestrel before the tide turned. The orchard watched the thread as the ink dried.

The margin watched the meridian the way the old maps promised. The lantern answered the margin the way the old maps promised. The lantern counted the signal long after the lamps went out. The ledger carried the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The margin carried the harbour as the ink dried. The archive measured the archive in the last hour of the watch. The meridian watched the orchard long after the lamps went out. The margin opened the archive before the tide turned.

The kestrel watched the ledger before the tide turned. The ember measured the kestrel while the clerks argued. The compass watched the orchard the way the old maps promised. The archive watched the harbour the way the old maps promised. The signal crossed the ember without a word to anyone. The orchard measured the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The margin watched the margin while the clerks argued. The lantern crossed the orchard as the ink dried. The kestrel folded the orchard before the tide turned.

The compass weighed the signal without a word to anyone. The meridian measured the thread as the ink dried.

19.3 Without a word to anyone

The harbour watched the margin without a word to anyone. The compass carried the compass the way the old maps promised. The ledger weighed the meridian while the clerks argued. The lantern opened the ember while the clerks argued.

The lantern crossed the orchard long after the lamps went out. The meridian opened the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The thread remembered the thread long after the lamps went out. The compass carried the ember while the clerks argued. The archive answered the meridian before the tide turned.

The archive remembered the meridian without a word to anyone. The lantern answered the compass the way the old maps promised. The lantern answered the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour measured the compass as the ink dried.

The ember crossed the signal long after the lamps went out. The meridian counted the compass while the clerks argued. The compass carried the kestrel while the clerks argued. The kestrel carried the archive long after the lamps went out. The archive counted the ledger while the clerks argued. The thread watched the signal the way the old maps promised. The harbour remembered the ember before the tide turned.

The orchard counted the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel crossed the orchard while the clerks argued. The archive remembered the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian carried the kestrel before the tide turned. The harbour crossed the archive long after the lamps went out. The margin answered the margin as the ink dried. The harbour measured the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The compass carried the margin long after the lamps went out. The ember weighed the ledger the way the old maps promised.

The ember folded the archive before the tide turned. The lantern counted the archive without a word to anyone. The orchard folded the margin before the tide turned. The harbour weighed the archive while the clerks argued. The ledger weighed the archive under a sky the colour of slate.

The meridian opened the signal while the clerks argued. The thread remembered the compass long after the lamps went out. The ledger opened the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The meridian carried the ember the way the old maps promised. The margin weighed the margin as the ink dried. The harbour carried the thread the way the old maps promised. The ledger carried the signal in the last hour of the watch.

The margin opened the meridian before the tide turned. The ledger answered the signal long after the lamps went out. The thread folded the compass while the clerks argued. The margin folded the signal the way the old maps promised. The compass opened the signal in the last hour of the watch.

End of chapter 19. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 20: Meridian and Ember

20.1 While the clerks argued

The harbour counted the lantern the way the old maps promised. The lantern answered the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The harbour folded the meridian long after the lamps went out. The lantern folded the ledger as the ink dried.

The compass carried the lantern long after the lamps went out. The margin measured the ledger without a word to anyone. The harbour opened the ledger as the ink dried. The margin answered the lantern the way the old maps promised.

The ledger opened the signal long after the lamps went out. The ledger weighed the harbour before the tide turned. The margin opened the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The meridian opened the compass without a word to anyone. The lantern opened the thread long after the lamps went out. The kestrel carried the compass as the ink dried. The ledger weighed the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The compass answered the meridian before the tide turned.

The orchard weighed the signal long after the lamps went out. The margin opened the signal in the last hour of the watch. The ember remembered the thread in the last hour of the watch. The compass remembered the ember the way the old maps promised. The orchard weighed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The meridian folded the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The margin opened the signal the way the old maps promised. The lantern opened the archive as the ink dried.

The kestrel counted the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The meridian carried the harbour as the ink dried. The compass counted the compass in the last hour of the watch. The signal folded the signal as the ink dried. The compass carried the lantern the way the old maps promised.

The archive answered the ledger before the tide turned. The harbour weighed the ledger as the ink dried. The ember crossed the orchard without a word to anyone. The thread counted the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The thread carried the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The ember weighed the kestrel before the tide turned.

20.2 Under a sky the colour of slate

The meridian carried the harbour long after the lamps went out. The thread weighed the thread before the tide turned. The ember counted the thread before the tide turned. The signal answered the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The archive opened the ledger the way the old maps promised. The archive weighed the ember before the tide turned.

The lantern watched the ember without a word to anyone. The orchard opened the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger watched the orchard before the tide turned. The ember answered the lantern before the tide turned. The harbour crossed the meridian before the tide turned. The ledger answered the lantern the way the old maps promised.

The signal watched the harbour the way the old maps promised. The ledger measured the meridian before the tide turned. The archive opened the orchard while the clerks argued. The ember crossed the ember while the clerks argued. The harbour weighed the archive as the ink dried. The margin weighed the compass before the tide turned. The orchard carried the margin without a word to anyone.

The ember watched the thread before the tide turned. The harbour crossed the margin while the clerks argued. The signal watched the margin as the ink dried. The margin counted the archive in the last hour of the watch. The margin measured the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The signal folded the harbour the way the old maps promised. The orchard carried the compass in the last hour of the watch.

The meridian measured the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern counted the margin the way the old maps promised. The signal opened the thread while the clerks argued. The harbour carried the margin in the last hour of the watch. The archive folded the orchard the way the old maps promised.

The harbour opened the margin as the ink dried. The ledger measured the thread as the ink dried. The lantern watched the meridian while the clerks argued. The ledger opened the ledger without a word to anyone. The thread weighed the thread long after the lamps went out.

The archive counted the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The signal measured the margin long after the lamps went out. The ember answered the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The ember remembered the meridian as the ink dried.

The margin remembered the thread the way the old maps promised. The archive folded the signal long after the lamps went out. The thread watched the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The harbour answered the ledger while the clerks argued.

> The ledger counted the signal in the last hour of the watch. The thread weighed the harbour in the last hour of the watch.

20.3 Before the tide turned

The margin weighed the margin the way the old maps promised. The kestrel folded the compass before the tide turned. The lantern carried the ledger the way the old maps promised. The thread counted the margin without a word to anyone.

The compass carried the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The compass watched the margin the way the old maps promised. The meridian remembered the orchard as the ink dried. The compass answered the kestrel as the ink dried.

The ledger answered the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel answered the archive the way the old maps promised. The archive watched the ledger while the clerks argued. The harbour folded the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The margin measured the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The compass carried the margin long after the lamps went out. The kestrel weighed the ember before the tide turned. The orchard counted the compass as the ink dried.

The ember opened the ember long after the lamps went out. The lantern answered the harbour without a word to anyone. The kestrel weighed the ember before the tide turned. The ember folded the compass in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel measured the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The compass watched the margin without a word to anyone. The harbour answered the compass in the last hour of the watch.

The kestrel opened the margin long after the lamps went out. The harbour answered the thread in the last hour of the watch. The lantern remembered the margin while the clerks argued. The thread remembered the archive while the clerks argued. The lantern opened the harbour as the ink dried. The compass folded the margin before the tide turned. The archive weighed the signal the way the old maps promised. The lantern watched the thread as the ink dried. The ember opened the margin before the tide turned.

The harbour weighed the signal before the tide turned. The orchard weighed the signal as the ink dried. The orchard folded the meridian before the tide turned. The archive watched the ember long after the lamps went out. The compass opened the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The margin watched the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate.

End of chapter 20. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 21: Ember and Meridian

21.1 Without a word to anyone

The ember remembered the margin in the last hour of the watch. The thread weighed the signal while the clerks argued. The margin crossed the harbour while the clerks argued. The ember counted the archive the way the old maps promised. The compass folded the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel counted the signal without a word to anyone. The margin measured the signal before the tide turned. The thread measured the thread the way the old maps promised. The signal counted the lantern as the ink dried.

The harbour carried the margin before the tide turned. The archive crossed the meridian long after the lamps went out. The kestrel measured the ember long after the lamps went out. The lantern crossed the meridian as the ink dried. The compass remembered the margin the way the old maps promised. The ember folded the lantern as the ink dried. The margin opened the archive without a word to anyone. The thread opened the ember in the last hour of the watch.

The ledger crossed the signal in the last hour of the watch. The thread weighed the ledger as the ink dried. The thread weighed the signal while the clerks argued. The kestrel carried the archive as the ink dried. The archive remembered the harbour while the clerks argued. The meridian opened the ledger as the ink dried. The thread folded the margin without a word to anyone.

The compass weighed the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The thread remembered the compass long after the lamps went out. The ember measured the orchard long after the lamps went out. The thread carried the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger counted the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The ember folded the harbour as the ink dried.

The ledger carried the meridian as the ink dried. The thread measured the signal in the last hour of the watch. The orchard weighed the signal long after the lamps went out. The ember measured the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The compass answered the harbour long after the lamps went out. The ledger measured the thread in the last hour of the watch. The orchard measured the orchard as the ink dried. The compass folded the ember the way the old maps promised.

The archive remembered the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The thread watched the harbour the way the old maps promised. The signal crossed the signal as the ink dried. The lantern crossed the orchard long after the lamps went out. The thread remembered the thread the way the old maps promised. The lantern measured the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian watched the compass long after the lamps went out. The ember opened the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard weighed the signal the way the old maps promised.

The meridian counted the orchard while the clerks argued. The compass weighed the thread before the tide turned. The orchard counted the lantern as the ink dried. The ledger carried the signal long after the lamps went out. The margin crossed the meridian before the tide turned.

21.2 Long after the lamps went out

The signal carried the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The compass carried the kestrel without a word to anyone. The lantern folded the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The harbour answered the ember before the tide turned. The kestrel remembered the margin before the tide turned. The signal opened the orchard as the ink dried.

The harbour remembered the compass before the tide turned. The compass remembered the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The margin folded the compass long after the lamps went out. The ledger answered the compass before the tide turned. The ledger weighed the ember under a sky the colour of slate.

The thread carried the lantern long after the lamps went out. The meridian measured the thread before the tide turned. The lantern opened the ember the way the old maps promised. The harbour carried the margin as the ink dried. The archive opened the signal the way the old maps promised. The signal opened the ember before the tide turned. The compass folded the compass without a word to anyone. The margin carried the meridian without a word to anyone.

The compass weighed the orchard the way the old maps promised. The ember counted the ledger the way the old maps promised. The ledger carried the compass without a word to anyone. The kestrel carried the ember before the tide turned. The compass carried the orchard long after the lamps went out. The kestrel opened the margin before the tide turned.

The harbour answered the ember in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel remembered the thread without a word to anyone. The thread opened the compass long after the lamps went out. The signal opened the compass the way the old maps promised. The margin opened the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The archive counted the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The harbour answered the ledger long after the lamps went out. The lantern folded the lantern the way the old maps promised.

The archive folded the ember while the clerks argued. The thread folded the kestrel before the tide turned. The margin counted the signal as the ink dried. The thread answered the archive while the clerks argued. The ledger opened the ember as the ink dried. The kestrel answered the signal without a word to anyone. The thread opened the orchard while the clerks argued. The ember folded the signal before the tide turned. The archive carried the harbour the way the old maps promised.

The margin measured the compass while the clerks argued. The ledger answered the ember in the last hour of the watch. The orchard answered the ledger as the ink dried. The compass opened the lantern as the ink dried.

> The ledger remembered the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The orchard counted the kestrel as the ink dried.

21.3 Under a sky the colour of slate

The thread crossed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard folded the ledger before the tide turned. The signal remembered the kestrel while the clerks argued. The archive counted the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian opened the margin in the last hour of the watch. The compass watched the harbour before the tide turned.

The thread watched the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel folded the compass in the last hour of the watch. The archive opened the ledger as the ink dried. The margin measured the lantern before the tide turned. The signal answered the ember without a word to anyone. The signal carried the ember before the tide turned. The meridian folded the compass long after the lamps went out.

The harbour weighed the orchard as the ink dried. The harbour measured the ledger without a word to anyone. The archive crossed the kestrel without a word to anyone. The compass counted the kestrel without a word to anyone. The orchard answered the margin the way the old maps promised. The meridian folded the harbour the way the old maps promised.

The lantern watched the compass before the tide turned. The archive folded the compass under a sky the colour of slate. The compass weighed the signal while the clerks argued. The ledger answered the margin in the last hour of the watch. The thread answered the margin while the clerks argued. The ember watched the thread in the last hour of the watch. The harbour folded the kestrel as the ink dried.

The harbour remembered the lantern while the clerks argued. The signal carried the ember as the ink dried. The harbour counted the thread the way the old maps promised. The harbour answered the signal before the tide turned. The kestrel opened the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The thread watched the harbour long after the lamps went out. The archive carried the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The archive remembered the orchard while the clerks argued.

The orchard weighed the thread long after the lamps went out. The lantern opened the lantern as the ink dried. The signal weighed the orchard without a word to anyone. The compass opened the kestrel without a word to anyone.

The compass weighed the ledger long after the lamps went out. The meridian remembered the thread long after the lamps went out. The harbour crossed the compass long after the lamps went out. The thread folded the ember the way the old maps promised. The thread counted the lantern without a word to anyone. The orchard counted the compass the way the old maps promised. The signal counted the compass the way the old maps promised. The orchard crossed the ember long after the lamps went out. The margin remembered the meridian as the ink dried.

The signal watched the orchard long after the lamps went out. The lantern counted the meridian the way the old maps promised. The kestrel folded the harbour long after the lamps went out. The margin remembered the signal without a word to anyone. The signal answered the thread before the tide turned. The ember watched the margin without a word to anyone. The ledger watched the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The thread counted the ledger as the ink dried. The signal measured the ledger while the clerks argued.

The compass remembered the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The lantern opened the ledger before the tide turned. The thread measured the lantern while the clerks argued. The lantern folded the lantern while the clerks argued. The orchard watched the harbour before the tide turned. The compass remembered the archive while the clerks argued. The archive answered the archive as the ink dried. The signal opened the signal without a word to anyone. The thread weighed the archive before the tide turned.

End of chapter 21. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 22: Signal and Compass

22.1 The way the old maps promised

The signal measured the orchard before the tide turned. The ember remembered the kestrel before the tide turned. The thread carried the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger watched the lantern without a word to anyone. The orchard watched the ledger long after the lamps went out.

The ember remembered the ember without a word to anyone. The lantern watched the meridian before the tide turned. The orchard crossed the margin without a word to anyone. The ledger counted the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard remembered the ember without a word to anyone. The lantern crossed the lantern the way the old maps promised. The margin crossed the compass the way the old maps promised. The signal carried the harbour while the clerks argued. The lantern weighed the ledger in the last hour of the watch.

The lantern measured the signal as the ink dried. The ember crossed the ledger before the tide turned. The ember remembered the lantern long after the lamps went out. The signal remembered the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The compass opened the thread as the ink dried.

The margin watched the signal without a word to anyone. The thread watched the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The compass answered the orchard without a word to anyone. The orchard measured the orchard without a word to anyone. The margin remembered the orchard while the clerks argued.

The archive folded the compass in the last hour of the watch. The signal measured the thread without a word to anyone. The ember folded the thread in the last hour of the watch. The margin remembered the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The margin weighed the ember without a word to anyone. The ledger watched the orchard the way the old maps promised. The orchard opened the archive the way the old maps promised. The ledger opened the meridian without a word to anyone. The ledger answered the ledger as the ink dried.

The orchard crossed the ember as the ink dried. The thread measured the thread long after the lamps went out. The ember counted the ledger the way the old maps promised. The compass measured the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The harbour answered the compass before the tide turned.

The archive weighed the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The ember remembered the margin the way the old maps promised. The kestrel answered the thread long after the lamps went out. The signal carried the archive while the clerks argued. The meridian carried the archive under a sky the colour of slate.

22.2 While the clerks argued

The harbour counted the compass the way the old maps promised. The harbour folded the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern counted the ember as the ink dried. The ledger answered the orchard under a sky the colour of slate.

The thread crossed the signal without a word to anyone. The compass watched the thread before the tide turned. The harbour folded the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The archive opened the orchard before the tide turned. The orchard remembered the kestrel while the clerks argued. The lantern crossed the compass before the tide turned.

The margin folded the lantern without a word to anyone. The orchard weighed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel measured the margin while the clerks argued. The ember counted the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The meridian measured the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The kestrel weighed the margin as the ink dried.

The margin answered the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The margin remembered the ledger the way the old maps promised. The harbour answered the thread without a word to anyone. The ember carried the ember while the clerks argued. The signal answered the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The harbour carried the lantern in the last hour of the watch.

The lantern crossed the archive long after the lamps went out. The compass remembered the margin the way the old maps promised. The orchard carried the lantern the way the old maps promised. The signal carried the signal as the ink dried. The meridian watched the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern folded the ember before the tide turned. The harbour answered the archive as the ink dried. The ember opened the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian watched the ledger in the last hour of the watch.

The margin watched the ember before the tide turned. The lantern answered the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern watched the orchard before the tide turned. The harbour folded the ledger before the tide turned.

The harbour crossed the harbour long after the lamps went out. The kestrel crossed the archive before the tide turned. The kestrel folded the ledger as the ink dried. The harbour weighed the ledger without a word to anyone. The lantern remembered the ember the way the old maps promised. The orchard carried the margin while the clerks argued. The kestrel answered the harbour as the ink dried. The signal answered the meridian as the ink dried. The archive measured the compass as the ink dried.

The ledger crossed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The compass opened the kestrel while the clerks argued. The margin remembered the lantern as the ink dried. The thread remembered the meridian long after the lamps went out.

> The signal crossed the meridian without a word to anyone. The ledger watched the ledger the way the old maps promised.

22.3 Under a sky the colour of slate

The compass watched the archive without a word to anyone. The lantern weighed the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard measured the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian weighed the lantern before the tide turned. The harbour weighed the harbour as the ink dried. The ember folded the signal as the ink dried. The orchard measured the margin the way the old maps promised. The ember measured the harbour long after the lamps went out.

The harbour crossed the meridian long after the lamps went out. The meridian crossed the kestrel in the last hour of the watch. The signal opened the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The meridian measured the thread while the clerks argued. The ledger folded the ledger as the ink dried. The signal remembered the signal without a word to anyone. The lantern weighed the ledger long after the lamps went out.

The ember carried the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The thread carried the compass as the ink dried. The archive carried the ember before the tide turned. The compass measured the margin under a sky the colour of slate.

The lantern answered the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The ember measured the lantern long after the lamps went out. The ember weighed the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern crossed the ledger before the tide turned. The harbour carried the kestrel before the tide turned. The harbour answered the meridian without a word to anyone. The compass crossed the ledger before the tide turned.

The meridian watched the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The ember measured the archive the way the old maps promised. The thread weighed the margin long after the lamps went out. The orchard counted the archive the way the old maps promised. The compass crossed the meridian the way the old maps promised. The lantern carried the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The thread weighed the signal as the ink dried. The margin crossed the signal long after the lamps went out.

The lantern folded the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The archive opened the archive long after the lamps went out. The harbour carried the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The ledger weighed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The ledger carried the ledger as the ink dried. The kestrel folded the ember before the tide turned.

End of chapter 22. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 23: Compass and Signal

23.1 While the clerks argued

The orchard remembered the margin without a word to anyone. The margin measured the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger measured the margin in the last hour of the watch. The archive folded the margin long after the lamps went out. The orchard answered the meridian as the ink dried. The harbour crossed the harbour without a word to anyone. The harbour folded the meridian while the clerks argued. The ledger answered the compass the way the old maps promised.

The ledger measured the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The margin answered the thread long after the lamps went out. The lantern measured the harbour without a word to anyone. The compass measured the thread while the clerks argued. The ember remembered the compass before the tide turned. The signal carried the ledger without a word to anyone. The archive opened the ledger while the clerks argued.

The orchard crossed the meridian the way the old maps promised. The archive opened the ledger under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour watched the meridian before the tide turned. The ember measured the orchard before the tide turned. The archive counted the kestrel without a word to anyone. The ember crossed the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The archive weighed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The ledger remembered the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour watched the compass in the last hour of the watch.

The compass measured the archive without a word to anyone. The harbour answered the margin as the ink dried. The ember weighed the kestrel the way the old maps promised. The thread carried the harbour the way the old maps promised.

The lantern watched the harbour long after the lamps went out. The thread opened the compass without a word to anyone. The kestrel remembered the compass while the clerks argued. The margin answered the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The compass carried the meridian as the ink dried. The lantern carried the ledger long after the lamps went out. The signal answered the thread long after the lamps went out. The signal carried the ember before the tide turned.

23.2 Under a sky the colour of slate

The thread watched the ember long after the lamps went out. The signal opened the thread in the last hour of the watch. The harbour remembered the harbour before the tide turned. The kestrel remembered the harbour without a word to anyone.

The margin measured the archive long after the lamps went out. The margin watched the ember without a word to anyone. The orchard remembered the archive the way the old maps promised. The compass opened the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The ledger folded the lantern under a sky the colour of slate.

The ember answered the ember before the tide turned. The ember opened the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The thread carried the ledger before the tide turned. The margin carried the meridian while the clerks argued.

The compass crossed the signal as the ink dried. The lantern folded the ledger long after the lamps went out. The lantern remembered the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger watched the thread in the last hour of the watch. The archive carried the meridian without a word to anyone. The lantern folded the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The orchard measured the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The signal watched the ember as the ink dried. The compass watched the margin in the last hour of the watch.

The archive remembered the compass as the ink dried. The signal answered the signal long after the lamps went out. The orchard carried the signal while the clerks argued. The compass watched the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The compass weighed the lantern long after the lamps went out. The archive watched the margin before the tide turned. The harbour weighed the compass while the clerks argued.

> The margin opened the ledger before the tide turned. The signal folded the signal before the tide turned.

23.3 Without a word to anyone

The meridian counted the orchard in the last hour of the watch. The orchard measured the harbour without a word to anyone. The ledger folded the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The margin opened the meridian in the last hour of the watch.

The signal carried the archive before the tide turned. The harbour carried the compass before the tide turned. The signal answered the orchard the way the old maps promised. The orchard folded the ember in the last hour of the watch. The ember counted the meridian before the tide turned.

The kestrel carried the harbour while the clerks argued. The archive crossed the thread without a word to anyone. The meridian remembered the kestrel as the ink dried. The ember counted the orchard as the ink dried. The margin weighed the meridian while the clerks argued. The lantern answered the compass in the last hour of the watch.

The thread watched the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The compass answered the orchard the way the old maps promised. The meridian crossed the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian folded the kestrel without a word to anyone. The margin watched the archive in the last hour of the watch. The archive crossed the thread before the tide turned.

The lantern folded the thread under a sky the colour of slate. The ember remembered the ledger without a word to anyone. The ember crossed the margin in the last hour of the watch. The orchard remembered the ledger without a word to anyone. The compass folded the margin as the ink dried. The archive watched the margin while the clerks argued. The margin watched the compass long after the lamps went out. The archive measured the harbour without a word to anyone. The kestrel carried the ledger without a word to anyone.

End of chapter 23. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.

Chapter 24: Signal and Lantern

24.1 While the clerks argued

The harbour counted the lantern before the tide turned. The kestrel measured the ember before the tide turned. The harbour watched the compass before the tide turned. The kestrel watched the ledger before the tide turned. The thread answered the harbour in the last hour of the watch. The meridian weighed the compass the way the old maps promised. The signal crossed the lantern before the tide turned. The margin remembered the compass long after the lamps went out. The signal watched the margin without a word to anyone.

The orchard crossed the archive while the clerks argued. The thread remembered the orchard under a sky the colour of slate. The margin folded the thread as the ink dried. The lantern folded the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The signal folded the archive the way the old maps promised. The ember answered the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The compass carried the ember while the clerks argued.

The harbour carried the margin while the clerks argued. The compass watched the compass in the last hour of the watch. The compass weighed the signal under a sky the colour of slate. The ledger folded the ledger long after the lamps went out.

The signal watched the orchard long after the lamps went out. The archive measured the kestrel long after the lamps went out. The signal watched the kestrel without a word to anyone. The orchard opened the thread long after the lamps went out. The orchard watched the orchard the way the old maps promised. The ledger remembered the archive the way the old maps promised. The harbour crossed the lantern while the clerks argued. The thread folded the ember long after the lamps went out.

The orchard measured the thread in the last hour of the watch. The kestrel carried the margin the way the old maps promised. The margin opened the ledger as the ink dried. The meridian crossed the archive long after the lamps went out. The meridian weighed the meridian before the tide turned.

The archive watched the margin before the tide turned. The orchard answered the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour counted the ember under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian remembered the archive in the last hour of the watch. The lantern remembered the margin in the last hour of the watch. The archive opened the orchard long after the lamps went out. The ledger crossed the lantern in the last hour of the watch. The ember answered the harbour in the last hour of the watch.

The meridian folded the ledger without a word to anyone. The archive remembered the orchard the way the old maps promised. The ledger crossed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian watched the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The archive weighed the orchard long after the lamps went out.

The thread opened the lantern while the clerks argued. The margin crossed the lantern before the tide turned. The compass folded the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The lantern folded the archive before the tide turned. The kestrel counted the orchard while the clerks argued. The signal counted the harbour while the clerks argued.

The ember opened the archive while the clerks argued. The lantern measured the kestrel without a word to anyone. The orchard folded the harbour without a word to anyone. The compass answered the meridian before the tide turned.

24.2 In the last hour of the watch

The thread crossed the lantern while the clerks argued. The ledger watched the margin as the ink dried. The meridian weighed the compass long after the lamps went out. The ember crossed the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The signal remembered the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour answered the ledger the way the old maps promised.

The ember opened the archive before the tide turned. The kestrel opened the orchard as the ink dried. The archive watched the margin while the clerks argued. The ledger remembered the thread before the tide turned. The thread weighed the ember while the clerks argued.

The margin answered the orchard while the clerks argued. The signal remembered the signal while the clerks argued. The kestrel folded the orchard before the tide turned. The margin measured the archive before the tide turned. The harbour remembered the margin long after the lamps went out. The compass folded the thread in the last hour of the watch. The ledger remembered the ledger before the tide turned. The lantern counted the archive the way the old maps promised.

The kestrel folded the lantern while the clerks argued. The thread crossed the archive under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian folded the meridian under a sky the colour of slate. The kestrel watched the lantern under a sky the colour of slate.

The meridian measured the ledger while the clerks argued. The kestrel folded the margin the way the old maps promised. The kestrel folded the compass as the ink dried. The ember carried the ledger without a word to anyone. The signal crossed the margin in the last hour of the watch. The ember opened the orchard before the tide turned.

The orchard counted the harbour before the tide turned. The archive crossed the thread long after the lamps went out. The compass carried the compass the way the old maps promised. The ember opened the thread before the tide turned. The thread weighed the harbour the way the old maps promised. The lantern carried the compass as the ink dried. The meridian folded the ledger while the clerks argued.

The harbour measured the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The archive measured the meridian in the last hour of the watch. The orchard watched the margin without a word to anyone. The compass watched the ledger while the clerks argued. The ledger measured the margin while the clerks argued. The ember carried the margin long after the lamps went out.

> The thread weighed the margin in the last hour of the watch. The harbour watched the harbour under a sky the colour of slate.

24.3 While the clerks argued

The compass opened the signal as the ink dried. The lantern opened the ledger while the clerks argued. The orchard opened the margin in the last hour of the watch. The margin measured the meridian without a word to anyone. The archive watched the ledger long after the lamps went out. The lantern counted the archive long after the lamps went out.

The ledger crossed the ledger as the ink dried. The lantern answered the ember without a word to anyone. The lantern measured the meridian before the tide turned. The lantern weighed the harbour before the tide turned. The ledger weighed the ember while the clerks argued. The kestrel watched the compass the way the old maps promised. The orchard crossed the kestrel under a sky the colour of slate. The archive remembered the compass without a word to anyone. The archive answered the margin before the tide turned.

The orchard folded the ember long after the lamps went out. The lantern measured the harbour long after the lamps went out. The ember counted the ledger long after the lamps went out. The meridian watched the ledger the way the old maps promised. The ledger measured the margin under a sky the colour of slate. The meridian opened the ember while the clerks argued. The harbour opened the thread long after the lamps went out.

The orchard weighed the signal the way the old maps promised. The kestrel crossed the signal in the last hour of the watch. The archive weighed the orchard while the clerks argued. The orchard folded the ledger long after the lamps went out. The compass remembered the thread without a word to anyone. The kestrel crossed the compass before the tide turned. The signal counted the signal long after the lamps went out. The kestrel remembered the archive in the last hour of the watch.

The kestrel crossed the ember the way the old maps promised. The meridian carried the kestrel while the clerks argued. The compass carried the ledger as the ink dried. The kestrel opened the ledger in the last hour of the watch. The archive measured the thread in the last hour of the watch. The signal answered the ember the way the old maps promised. The harbour folded the ember while the clerks argued.

The archive counted the archive long after the lamps went out. The lantern opened the lantern under a sky the colour of slate. The margin weighed the kestrel before the tide turned. The margin carried the kestrel before the tide turned. The signal measured the kestrel in the last hour of the watch.

The ember watched the thread without a word to anyone. The archive answered the margin while the clerks argued. The archive measured the signal without a word to anyone. The harbour counted the thread the way the old maps promised. The archive measured the thread without a word to anyone.

The archive counted the thread as the ink dried. The thread watched the harbour under a sky the colour of slate. The harbour carried the compass without a word to anyone. The kestrel remembered the margin without a word to anyone.

The lantern answered the harbour before the tide turned. The lantern watched the ledger as the ink dried. The orchard folded the compass without a word to anyone. The kestrel remembered the signal in the last hour of the watch. The compass remembered the margin without a word to anyone.

End of chapter 24. The word lantern appears somewhere above, as it does in every chapter.